THE WEATHER.

U. S. Department of Agriculture,
Weather Bureau,
Toledo, O., June 23, 1892.

The weather map shows but slight change in the general weather conditions during the past 24 hours.

There is a trough of low barometer pressure extending from Texas to the St. Lawrence valley.

The area of high pressure has advanced slowly to the south and east; a second area continues to remain almost stationary over the southern states.

Local showers are reported from all sections; the heaviest rainfalls are as follows: La Crosse, 1.86 inches; Jacksonville, 1.04; Galveston 1.02; Sandusky, .94; Miles City, .80; Chicago, .92; Cleveland, .52; and Helena, .50.

The weather over the western half of the country and over the lake region is generally cloudy and rainy, and elsewhere generally fair.

The temperature has fallen 10 degrees over Michigan and Nebraska, and risen slightly or remained stationary in all other sections.

Forecast for Toledo and vicinity for next 36 hours, generally fair, with occasional showers, slightly cooler.

E. A. HANNER, Observer.

Forecast for Ohio—Local showers; southwesterly winds, becoming variable.

Indiana and Illinois—Showers and thunderstorms; cooler in southern portion; variable winds.

Michigan—Local rains; winds shifting to northerly; cooler in southwest, warmer in northwest portion.

THE CHOICE OF THE MASSES

The Sage from Buzzard's Bay Wins on the First Ballot.

Twenty Thousand People Shout for the Nominee.

A Strong Platform Complete in All Its Planks.

Full Reports of the Speeches and Incidents That Marked One of the Greatest Political Gatherings the Country Has Ever Seen.

Chicago, June 23.—(Special)—The session of Wednesday afternoon opened with a general feeling that the battle was to be fought at close range.

It was believed that Bourke Cockran's warning of the morning that he would have business with the convention later meant entertainment for the crowd. Partly, too, the anticipation of the throng was based upon the conviction that another democratic presidential nominee would have been placed in history before the session should have ended.

Tickets were being sold upon the curbs outside the hall for $12 to $15 each. The atmosphere was charged heavily with moisture. The men in the galleries took off their coats. How the women maintained life none but themselves know.

New York's delegation came first into the hall, and the genuine Tammany yell leaped forth from the bench directly behind the alternates. A cry of Hill went up, but a sound like escaping steam shot out from the floor and grew to a whistling, hissing storm. The great throng, however, subsided when Chairman Wilson thumped the desk with a wooden mallet and the session had begun.

Rev. Thomas Green, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., was presented at 5:35 p. m., and he offered a prayer which, while characterized by high dignity, was strong, and elicited applause at its close.

The temper of the audience was clearly one of quick demonstration.

The band started "America" while yet the convention was awaiting the resolutions committee, and the strain of the familiar hymn brought hundreds to their feet and cheers from all.

Gov. Campbell strode up the aisle to Ohio's chairs, and his greeting was vociferous. Gen. Daniel Sickles slowly entered the hall upon his crutches, and was recognized and cheered until he took his seat.

Up rose Delegate Du Bignon of Georgia and moved to adjourn until 11 o'clock to-morrow. Yells of derision met this motion, and it was scarcely put before the convention by the chair before it was buried in a storm of "noes."

Ex-Secretary Whitney entered at 6:10 p. m. and took a place on the chairman's platform.

Gov. Campbell at 6:15 p. m. started on a final tour of the delegation, presumably on a missionary errand. He first made his way to Michigan's chairs, and the entire body of delegates from that state leaped upon their chairs and cheered him, while Don Dickinson greeted him. The tour was continued amid cheers.

At 6:24 Delegate Chas. H. Jones of Missouri, chairman of the resolutions committee, appeared upon the platform. Addressing the convention he said: "I was instructed by the committee on resolutions to present to you as a report of the committee the following resolutions and move their adoption.

"In order that you may more distinctly hear what the committee has prepared, I intend to ask a gentleman who is as familiar as myself with the phraseology of the platform, to read it. (applause) and when it has been read I shall move the previous question upon the adoption of the platform. (Cries of "No, no.")

T. E. Patterson, of Colorado, advanced on the platform and said: In view of the statement just made, I will say that I represent a minority of the committee on resolutions, and I desire to announce that that minority expects to be heard, to present its report before the previous question shall be put. Quick cheers met this announcement.

Then ex-Secretary Vilas commenced to read the resolutions at 6:28, but when he reached the phrase, "From Madison to Cleveland," there was a quick shout of one voice near the platform. It was lost, however, in a flash, for it seemed that as though with one impulse the entire 20,000 people leaped upon their chairs and, with hats and handkerchiefs in the air, 20,000 throats left loose yells and screams that shook the heavy air and almost made the barracks quiver.

In a flash a white satin banner, heavy with gold fringe, shot aloft and was moved to the center aisle. It was the ensign of Michigan, and on one side was a picture of Mr. Cleveland.

The first outbreak had been but a murmur beside the savagery of noise and din that rose then and swept and rolled from side to side of the great wigwam and around the amphitheater. A man in the rear of the delegates hoisted a picture of David B. Hill. Quick as human impulse moves, a hostile hand ripped it from the standard and tore it up, while hisses for and against the act swept in a wave around the hall.

Then came into the arena the crimson banner of Iowa. A sturdy Boies man bore it aloft and waved it constantly, while the mass of sweltering people, swelled the din and storm of sound.

The tempest ebbed and flowed until 6:47 p. m., when Don M. Dickinson, of Michigan, caused the Michigan banner to be carried from view, in order that business might be resumed.

Through all this Tammany's men in the center aisle sat grim and silent, neither hissing Cleveland nor cheering Hill.

Finally at 6:48 Mr. Vilas again resumed the reading of the platform, which is as follows:

You don't get what you want, if you expect to buy Dr. Pierce's genuine medicines at less than the regular prices. You can buy counterfeits, imitations, dilutions, and substitutes, from unauthorized dealers, at what are called "cut prices," but the genuine guaranteed medicines cost more, and are worth more.

If you do get the genuine, they're the cheapest medicines you can buy, for they're guaranteed in every case to benefit or cure, or you have your money back.

But you won't get the genuine, except through druggists regularly authorized as agents, and at the following uniform and long-established prices:

THE PLATFORM.

A National Document Upon Which all Men Can Stand.

Section 1. The representatives of the democratic party of the United States, in national convention assembled, do affirm their allegiance to the principles of the party as formulated by Jefferson and exemplified by the long line of his successors in democratic leadership from Madison to Cleveland. We believe the public welfare demands that these principles be applied to the conduct of the federal government through the accession to power of that party that advocates them; and we solemnly declare that a need of a return to these fundamental principles of a free popular government, based on home rule and individual liberty, was never more urgent than now, when the tendency to centralize all power at the federal capital has become a menace to the reserved rights of the constitution as framed by the fathers of the republic.

Sec. 2. We warn the people of our common country, jealous for the preservation of free institutions, that the policy of federal control of elections to which the republican party itself is fraught with the gravest dangers, scarcely less momentous than would result from a revolution practically establishing a monarchy on the ruins of the republic. It strikes at the north as well as at the south and injured the colored citizen even more than the white; it mans a horde of deputy marshals at every polling place armed with federal power, returning boards appointed and controlled by federal authority, the outrage of the electoral rights of the people in the several states, the subjugation of the colored people to the control of the party in power and the reviving of the race antagonism now happily abated of the utmost peril to the safety and happiness of all; a measure deliberately and justly described by a leading republican senator as "the most infamous bill that ever crossed the threshold of the senate."

Two years ago this revolutionary policy was emphatically condemned by the people at the polls; but in contempt of that verdict the republican party has defiantly declared in its latest authoritative utterance that its success in the coming elections will mean the enactment of the force bill and the usurration of despotic control over elections in all the states.

Believing that the preservation of republican government in the United States is dependent upon the defeat of this policy of legalized force and fraud, we invite the support of all citizens who desire to see the consitution maintained in its integrity with the laws pursuant thereto which have given our country a hundred years of unexampled prosperity; and we pledge the democratic party, if it be entrusted with power, not only to the defeat of the force bill, but also to relentless opposition to the republican policy of profligate expenditures, which in the short space of two years has squandered an enormous surplus and emptied an overflowing treasury, after piling new burdens of taxation upon the already overtaxed labor of the country.

Sec. 3. We reiterate the doctrine of the democratic party that the necessity of the government is the only justification for taxation, and whenever a tax is unnecessary it is unjustifiable; that when custom house taxation is levied upon articles of another kind produced in this country, the difference between the cost of labor here and labor abroad, when such a difference exists, carefully measure any possible benefits to labor and the enormous additional impositions of the existing tariff fall with crushing force upon our farmers and workingmen, and for the mere advantage of the few whom it enriches, exact from labor a grossly unjust share of the expenses of the government, and we demand such a revision of the tariff laws as will remove their iniquitous inequalities, lighten their oppressions and put them on a constitutional and equitable basis.

But in making reductions in taxes, it is not proposed to injure any domestic industries, but rather to promote their healthy growth. From the foundation of this government taxes collected at the custom house have been the chief source of federal revenue. Such they must continue to be. Moreover, many industries have come to rely upon legislation for successful continuance, so that any change of law must be at every step regardful of the labor and capital thus involved. The process of reform must be subject in the execution of this plain dictate of justice.

We denounce the McKinley tariff law enacted by the Fifty-first congress as the culminating atrocity of class legislation; we indorse the efforts made by the democrats of the present congress to modify its most oppressive feature in the direction of free raw materials and cheaper manufactured goods that enter into general consumption, and we promise its repeal as one of the beneficent results that will follow the action of the people in entrusting power to the democratic party. Since the McKinley tariff went into operation there have been ten reductions of wages of the laboring men to one increase. We deny that there has been any increase of prosperity to the country since the tariff went into operation, and we point to the dullness and distress the wage reductions and strikes in the iron trade as the best possible evidence that no such prosperity has resulted from the McKinley act.

We call the attention of thoughtful Americans to the fact that after 30 years of restrictive taxes against the importation of foreign wealth, in exchange for our agricultural surplus, the homes and farms of the country have become burdened with a real estate mortgage debt of over two thousand five hundred million dollars, exclusive of other forms of indebtedness; that in one of the chief agricultural states of the west there appears real estate mortgage debt averaging $1.65 per capita of the total population; and that similar tendencies are shown to exist in the other agricultural supporting states. We denounce a policy which fosters no industry so much as it does that of the sheriff.

Sec. 4. Trade interchange on the basis of reciprocal advantages to the countries participating is a time-honored doctrine of the democratic faith, but we denounce the sham reciprocity which juggles with the people's desire for enlarged foreign markets and free exchanges by pretending to establish closer trade relations for a country whose articles of export are almost exclusively agricultural products with other countries that are also agricultural, while erecting a custom house barrier of prohibitive tariff taxes against the richest countries of the world that stand ready to take our entire surplus of products and to exchange therefor commodities which are necessaries and comforts of life among our own people.

Sec. 5. We recognize in the trusts and combinations, which are designed to enable capital to secure more than its just share of the joint product of capital and labor, a natural consequence of the prohibitive taxes which prevent the free competition which is the life of honest trade, but we believe their worst evils can be abated by law, and we demand the rigid enforcement of the laws to control them, together with such further legislation in restraint of their abuses as experiences may show to be necessary.

Sec. 6. The republican party, while professing a policy of reserving the public land for holdings by actual settlers, has given away the people's heritage till now a few railroad and non-resident aliens, individual and corporate, possess a larger area than all of our farms between the two seas. The last democratic administration reversed the improvident and unwise policy of the republican party touching the public domain, and reclaimed from corporations and syndicates, alien and domestic, and restored to the people nearly 100,000,000 acres of valuable land, to be sacredly held as homesteads for our citizens, and we pledge ourselves to continue this policy until every acre of land so unlawfully held shall be reclaimed and restored to the people.

Sec. 7. We denounce the republican legislation known as the Sherman action of 1890 as a cowardly makeshift fraught with possibilities of danger in the future which should make all of its supporters, as well as its author, anxious for its speedy repeal. We hold to the use of both gold and silver without discriminating against either metal or charge for mintage, but the dollar unit of coinage of both metals must be of equal intrinsic and exchangeable value or be adjusted through international agreement or by such safeguards of legislation as shall insure the maintenance of the parity of the two metals and the equal power of every dollar at all times in the markets and in the payment of debts; and we demand that all paper currency shall be at par with and redeemable in such coin. We insist upon this policy as specially necessary for the protection of the farmers and the laboring classes, the first and most defenseless victims of unstable money and fluctuating currency.

Sec. 8. We recommend that the prohibitory tax on state bank issues be repealed.

Sec. 9. Public office is a public trust. We reaffirm the declaration of the national convention of 1876 for the reform of the civil service and we call for the honest enforcement of all the laws regulating the same. The nomination of a president, as in the recent republican convention by delegations composed largely of his appointees holding office at his pleasure, is a scandalous satire upon free popular institutions and a startling illustration of the methods by which a president may gratify his ambition. We denounce a policy under which the federal office holders usurp and control party conventions in the states, and we pledge the democratic party to the reform of these and all other abuses which threaten individual liberty and local self-government.

Sec. 10. The democratic party is the only party that has ever given the country a foreign policy consistent and vigorous, compelling respect abroad and inspiring confidence at home. While avoiding entangling alliances, it has aimed to cultivate friendly relations with other nations, and especially with our neighbors on the American continent, whose destiny is closely linked with our own. We view with alarm the tendency to a policy of irritation and bluster which is liable at any time to confront us with the alternative of humiliation or war. We have the maintenance of a navy strong enough for all purposes of national defense, and to properly maintain the honor and dignity of the country abroad.

Sec. 11. This country has always been the refuge of the oppressed from every land—exiles for conscience sake—and in the spirit of the founders of our government we condemn the oppression practiced by the Russian government upon its Lutheran and Jewish subjects, and we call upon our national government, in the interest of justice and humanity, by all just and proper means, to use its prompt and best efforts to bring about a cessation of these cruel persecutions in the dominions of the czar, and to secure to the oppressed equal rights.

We tender our profound and earnest sympathy to those lovers of freedom who are struggling for home rule and the great cause of local self government in Ireland.

Sec. 12. We heartily approve all legitimate efforts to prevent the United States from being used as the dumping ground for the criminals and professional paupers of Europe, and we demand the right of enforcement of the laws against Chinese immigration and the importation of foreign workmen under contract to degrade American labor and lessen its wages. But we condemn and denounce any and all attempts to restrict the immigration to the industrious and worthy of foreign lands.

Sec. 13. This convention hereby renews the expression of approbation of the patriotism of the soldiers and sailors of the union in the war for its preservation, and we favor just and liberal pensions for all disabled union soldiers, their widows and dependents, but we demand that the work of the pension office shall be done impartially and honestly. We denounce the present administration of that office as incompetent, corrupt, disgraceful and dishonest.

Sec. 14. The federal government should care for and improve the Mississippi river and other great waterways of the republic, so as to secure for the interior states easy and cheap transportation to the tide-water.

When any waterway of the republic is of sufficient importance to demand the aid of the government—that such aid should be extended on a definite plan of continuous work until permanent improvement is secured.

Sec. 15. For the purpose of national defense and the promotion of commerce between the states we recognize the construction of the Nicaragua canal and its protection against foreign control as of great importance to the United States.

Sec. 16. Recognizing the world's Columbian exposition as a national undertaking of vast importance, in which the government has invited the co-operation of all the powers of the world, and appreciating the acceptance by many of such powers of the invitation so extended and the greatest liberal efforts being made by them to contribute to the grandeur of the undertaking, we are of opinion that congress should make such necessary financial provision as shall be requisite to the maintenance of the national honor and public faith.

Sec. 17. Popular education being the only safe basis of popular suffrage, we recommend to the several states most liberal appropriations for the public schools. Free common schools are the nursery of good government, and they have always received the fostering care of the democratic party, which favors every means of increasing intelligence. Freedom of education, being an essential of civil and religous liberty as well as a necessity for the development of intelligence, must not be interferred with under any pretext whatever. We are opposed to state interference with parental rights and rights of conscience in the education of children, as an infringement of the fundamental democrate doctrine that the largest individual liberty consistent with the rights of others insures the highest type of American citizenship and the best government.

Sec. 18. We approve the action of the present house of representatives in passing bills for the admission into the Union as states, of the territories of New Mexico, and Arizona, and we favor the early admission of all territories having the necessary population and resources to entitle them to statehood, and while they remain territories, we hold that the officials appointed to administer the government of any territory together with the Districts of Columbia and Alaska, should be bona fide residents of the territory or district in which their duties are to be performed. The democratic party believes in home rule and the control of their own affairs by the people of the vicinage.

Sec. 19. We favor legislation, by congress and state legislatures, to protect the lives and limbs of railway employes and those of other hazardous transportation companies, and denounce the inactivity of the republican party and particularly the republican senate for causing the defeat of measures beneficial and protective to this calss of wage workers.

Sec. 20. We are in favor of the enactment by the states of laws for abolishing the notorious sweating system, for abolishing contract convict labor and for prohibiting the employment in factories of children under 15 years of age.

Sec. 21. We are opposed to all sumptuary laws as an interference with the individual rights of the citizen.

Sec. 22. Upon this statement of principles and policy, the democratic party asks the intelligent judgment of the American people. It asks a change of administration and a change of system and a change of methods, thus assuring the maintenance unimpaired of institutions under which the republic has grown great and powerful.

GROVER CLEVELAND,
Democracy's Candidate for the Presidency of the United States.

THE DISCUSSION.

Larry Neal, of Ohio, Addresses the Convention.

The denunciation of measures like the force bill was loudly cheered. Applause also greeted the homestead plank and the portion of the silver plank denouncing the Sherman act. The reference to federal officers in national conventions elicited a terrific yell. The foreign policy plank the navy, the Jews in Russia, home rule for Ireland were all liberally cheered. The school law plank was carefully listened to, and was punctuated at the end of nearly every sentence by shouts of approval.

The only features of the platform which seemed to call for a divided sentiment were the tariff and silver planks, which were apparently not sufficiently radical to satisfy the delegates with pronounced views. Col. James moved the adoption of the platform.

A Minority Report.

Mr. Neal (Ohio) being recognized, said: "Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the convention, as a representative from the state of Ohio upon the committee on resolutions, I give notice of my intention to present to this convention an amendment to the section of hte platform relating to the tariff." (Applause.)

"I have been unable conscientiously to agree with the majority of my fellow members upon that section of this platform. I therefore give notice to the committee that I would move, in open convention, to strike out of that section of the platform pertaining to the tariff all the words preceding the denunciation the McKinley act and substituting therefor the following: "We denounce the republican protection as a fraud on the labor of the great majority of the American people for the benefit of the few. We declare it to be a fundamental principle of the democratic party that the federal government has no constitutional power to impose and collect tariff duties except for the purposes of revenue only (applause and cheers), and we demand that the collection of such taxes shall be limited to the necessities of the government when honestly and economically administered. (Cheers and applause.)

"Gentlemen of the convention——." The speaker was interrupted with cries of "Read that again; that is good."

In pursuance to a request by Mr. Bourke Cockran, of New York, the secretary reread the minority report.

Mr. Walker, of Missouri, called for the reading of that which Mr. Neal purposed to strike out, and the secretary read it, and at the close of the reading cries were heard "Strike that out!"

Mr. Neal, of Ohio—Gentlemen of the convention, the history of our country demonstrates that the American people will consider and determine but one great public question at a time. Many questions in a government like ours, with its varied interests, will necessarily attract some share of public attention at one and the same time; but it is none the less true that some one question will overshadow all others in importance and commend itself for the highest place in the thoughts of the people.

Such a question we now have in the federal system of protective taxation. Tariff reform has been the leading political issue in this country since the democratic party commenced to battle for a revision of protective taxation more than four years ago. It must continue to be such until it shall be as firmly established as any fundamental principle can be, that the federal government has no constitutional power to impose and collect tariff duties except for revenue only, and that even then the collection of such taxes shall be limited to the necessities of the government when honestly and economically administered.

A protective tariff is robbery of the great majority of the people for the benefit of the few; we believe it to be so, and we ought to have the courage of our convictions. (Loud cheers from the gallery.) We should not delay in the enunciation of it. The fact that its insidious purposes under the forms of law is called taxation renders it none the less robbery. (Cries were heard from various parts of the hall "That is right.")

And the claim that it is accomplished under the guise of law is as great a crime, and aggravates rather than lessens the enormity of the offense. Republican protection is as hostile to our form of government as was the principle of taxation without representation (applause), for which our forefathers rebelled and fought and achieved independence. As long as we heed the cry of protection so long we consent to the degradation of the masses in the interest of the classes, and to change the form and character of our government itself by converting it from a democracy, a government of the people, into an aristocracy of wealth. (Applause.) The rapid concentration of the wealth of the country under the fostering care of protection foreshadows this present change. The ownership of more than one-half of all the property of this great country by 17,000 persons, and the still more astounding fact that 250 of our 63,000,000 of people own—absolutely own—one twelfth of all the property of our country, proves with striking force the necessity for this change. (Cries of "Time," "Time.")

Then, my friends, let us go forward in this great battle which we have commenced. Let us not turn our back upon the enemy. (Cries of "We won't.") But let us make this the controlling question in such a manner that the most uneducated and ignorant man who reads that platform may understand it. (Applause.) Let us continue this fight until we, the people of this country, shall have reached a full and final conclusion upon this great question, and shall have determined it in favor of the struggling, toiling millions of this land, who too long already have been the unwilling but misguided victims of this cruel and odious doctrine of protection. (Applause.)

There were cries of "Watterson," and Mr. Henri Watterson, of Kentucky, came forward to the platform. His appearance was greeted with cheers. When order was restored he spoke as follows: "Before I open my lips to express an opinion upon this matter, I desire to have read an extract from the tariff plank of the national democratic platform of 1876. (Cheers.)

When the clerk finished reading Mr. Watterson resumed his address as follows:

This declaration of principles comes to us with the impression of the wisdom and the benediction of the spirit of that sage and saint of democrats, Samuel J. Tilden. (The mention of Mr. Tilden's name was received with prolonged cheers, all the New York delegation standing up and yelling.) Twelve long years I fought upon all occasions and at every opportunity to establish the doctrine of that plank as an article of the cardinal democratic faith, seeing it at last practically confirmed in three great democratic tariff acts, and finally in the message of a great democratic president. (Great applause.) Finally when I saw it confirmed and proclaimed by the democratic convention which assembled in 1888 in St. Louis, I said: "My labors are over; my fight is ended; the victory is won and I can go to sleep. (Applause.) I shall never again be needed in a democratic platform committee, and can entrust safely to younger and less experienced hands this work of my life and love." (Applause.)

When I listened to the extraordinary essay we have heard from this desk this afternoon (great applause) I asked myself whether we were indeed in a democratic convention or simply a republican convention (laughter and applause)—a republican convention revised by James G. Blaine (laughter and applause) or Benjamin F. Butler, for the tariff plank we have listened to this afternoon is almost identical in principle with the minority report submitted to the democratic convention in 1884 by Benjamin F. Butler and voted down almost unanimously.

I have no dissertation to offer you, but simply a statement of facts which ought to accomplish one of two things: either you should reject this monstrosity which has been hurled among you and adopt in its place the simple, lucid and true amendment offered by the gentleman from Ohio. (Applause.) Or if you don't want to do that, if you want to take some time to think about it, recommit the whole matter to the committee with instructions to clarify and purge themselves.

There were cries for Vilas, who came to the stand and said:

Gentlemen of the Convention—I shall detain you but a moment. I presume there is no gentleman here who is at all acquainted with my public record and my private record as a follower of the democratic party who does not know that every expressed in the proposed resolutions, read by the gentleman from Ohio, I, over and over again, have reiterated from the stump and from the platform now for these many years (cheers); but I also desire to make this remark; it is impossible to say too much; it is almost impossible to say enough in denunciation of the iniquitous and reckless tariff legislation which has been inflicted upon this country. There are many things to be said with reference to it. There are many declarations to be made with regard to it. You can extend your platform to any degree you see fit or the wearied powers of your committeemen in hearing argument and debate would enable them to sustain. But this resolution which you propose to strike out was a resolution and reported to the convention of 1884 (cries of "That is right"), over which I had the honor to preside; and it was reported to the prince of tariff reformers, Col. Wm. R. Morrison. (Applause.) And of all the eloquent voices that were lifted in behalf of it, on that occasion, none so sweet was there to the hearts of democrats, none rung with such blissful joy on all ears as that of the distinguished gentleman from Kentucky. (Long continued laughter and applause.)

The Old Plank of 1884.

Mr. Watterson walked up to Senator Vilas and handed him the report of the 1884 convention and pointed out the plank in the platform referred to, and said to Senator Vilas: "Read that; read it well; you can read it a great deal better than I can."

The burst of feeling seemed to prevail between the great orators contesting for their respective views. Mr. Watterson leaned back upon the speaker's desk with a smile while Mr. Vilas read from the book handed him. "Gentlemen," on that occasion the distinguished gentleman said in reference to it, "it is an honest platform, entirely so." (Laughter and applause.) "It is a sound platform, eminently so," and then Mr. Vilas laid the book down at Mr. Watterson's side and proceeded as follows:

"Gentlemen, I shall not now read at length the discussion which the distinguished gentleman made upon that occasion. Half of the words about it point to that part of the platform which it is proposed to strike out, and which we have heard baptized to-day as republican. I bowed down to it in 1884, as sound democratic doctrine, under the leadership of our distinguished and magnificent friend (referring with a bow to Mr. Watterson.) Now, fellow democrats, if you desire an additional expression of this idea in regard to the tariff, which the gentleman from Ohio had read, why, nobody can take it with more satisfaction than I."

The speaker was interrupted with the volume of cries, "Then take it; why not take it?" which came from the delegates and galleries. The chairman rapped for order, and Mr. Vilas continued.

After a lengthy discussion the substitute was stricken out by a vote of 564 to 342, and the platform was adopted.

THE NOMINATIONS.

Ex-Gov. Abbett Presents the Name of Cleveland.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Convention—In presenting a name to this convention, I speak for the united democracy of the state of New Jersey, whose loyalty to democratic principles, faithful services to the party, and whose contributions to its successes entitles it to the respectful consideration of the democracy of the union. Its electoral vote has always been cast in support of democratic principles and democratic candidates. (Cheers).

In voicing the unanimous wish of the delegation from New Jersey I present as their candidate for the suffrage of this convention the name of a distinguished democratic statesman, born upon its soil, for whom in two great presidential contests the state of New Jersey has given its electoral vote. (Cheers).

The supreme consideration in the mind of the democracy of New Jersey is the success of the democratic party and its principles. We have been in the past, and will be in the future, ready at all times to sacrifice personal preferences in deference to the clear expressions of the will of the democracy of the union. It is because his name will awaken throughout our state the enthusiasm of the democracy and insure success; it is because he represents the great democratic principles and policy upon which this entire convention is a unit; it is because we believe that with him as a candidate the democracy of the union will sweep the country and establish its principles throughout the length and breadth of the land, that we offer to the convention as a nominee the choice of the democracy of New Jersey—Grover Cleveland. (Applause.)

If any doubt existed in the minds of the democrats of New Jersey of his ability to lead the great democratic hosts to victory, they would not present his name today. With them the success of the party and the establishment of its principles are beyond their love and admiration for any man. (Cheers).

We feel certain that every democratic state, though its preferences may be for some other distinguished democrat, will give its warm, enthusiastic and earnest support to the nominee of this convention. The man whom we present will rally to his party thousands of independent voters whose choice is determined by their personal conviction that the candidate will represent principles dear to them and whose public policy gives assurance that if chosen by the people they will secure an honest, pure and conservative administration and the great interests of the country will be encouraged and protected. The time will come when other distinguished democrats who have been mentioned in connection with this nomination will receive that consideration to which the great services they have rendered their party entitle them, but we stand today in the presence of the fact that the majority of the democratic masses throughout the country, the rank and file and the millions of its voters demand the nomination of Grover Cleveland. (Cheers).

This sentiment is so strong and overpowering that it has affected and controlled the action of the delegates who would otherwise present the name of some distinguished leader of their own state with whom they feel victory would be assured, and in whom the entire country would feel confidence, but the people have spoken and favorite sons and leaders are standing aside in obedience to their will. (Cheers).

Shall we listen to the voice of the democracy of the union; shall we place on our banner the man of our choice, the man in whom they beleive, or shall we for any consideration of policy or expediency hesitate to obey their will? (Cheers.)

I have sublime faith in the expression of the people when it is clear and decisive.

When the question before them is one that has excited discussion and debate; when it appeals to their interests and their feelings and calls for the exercise of their judgment and they then say we want this man and we can elect him, we their representatives must obey or disappoint them. It is incumbent upon us to obey their wishes and their judgment; then having given the candidate of their choice, they will give us their best, their most energetic efforts to secure success. (Cheers.) We confidently rely upon the loyal and successful work of the democratic leaders who have advocated other candidates. We know that in the great state across the river from New Jersey, now controlled by the democratic party, there is no democrat who will shirk his duty of making every effort to secure the success of the candidate of this convention, notwithstandig his judgment may differ from that of the majority.

The democracy of New York and its great leaders, whose efforts and splendid generalship have given to us a democratic senator and governor will always be true to the great party they represent. They will not waver; nor will they rest in the coming canvass until they have achieved success. Their grand victories of the past their honorable ambition, their unquestioned democracy, will make them arise and fight as never before, and with those that they represent and lead they will marshal the great independent vote, and will again secure for us the democratic victory in New York. The grand democratic clubs under whose leadership the city and state of New York are now governed will give to the cause the great weight of their organizations.

The thundering echoes of this convention announcing the nomination of Grover Cleveland will not have died over the hills and through the vallevs of this land, before you will hear and see all our leaders rallying to the support of our candidate. They will begin their efforts for organization and success and continue their work until victory crowns their efforts. All democrats will fight for victory, and they will succeed, because the principles of the party enunciated here are for the best interests of the country at large, and because the people of this land have unquestioning faith that Grover Cleveland will give the country a pure, honest, and stable government and an administration which the great business interests of the country, and the agricultural and laboring interests of the masses will receive with proper and due consideration.

Why this demand for Cleveland? The question has been asked why is it that the masses of the party demand the nomination of Grover Cleveland? Why is it that this man who has no offices to distribute, no wealth to command, should have secured the spontaneous support of the great body of democracy? Why is it that with all that has been urged against him the people still cry, "Give us Cleveland?" Why is it, although he has pronounced in honest, clear and able language his views upon questions upon which some of his party may differ with him that he is still near and dear to the masses? It is because he has crystallized into a living issue the great principle upon which this battle is to be fought out at the coming election. If he did not create tariff reform he made it a presidential issue; he vitalized it and presented it to our party as the issue for which we could fight and continue to battle until upon it victory is now assured. There are few men in his position who would have the courage to boldly make the issue and present it so clearly and forcibly as he did in his message of 1887. I believe that his policy then was to force a national issue which would appeal to the judgment of the people.

We must honor a man who is honest enough and bold enough under such circumstances to proclaim that the success of the party upon principle is better than evasion or shirking of true national issues for temporary success. When victory is obtained upon a principle it forms the solid foundation of party success in the future. It is no longer the question of battle to be won on the mistakes of our foes, but it is a victory to be accomplished by a charge along the whole line under the banner of principle. There is another reason why the people demand his nomination. They feel that the tariff reform views of President Cleveland and the principle laid down in his great message, whatever its temporary effect may have been, gives us a living and a vital issue to fight for, which has made the great victories since 1882 possible. It consolidated in one solid phalanx the democracy of the nation. In every state of this union that police has been placed in democratic platforms, and our battles have been fought upon it and this great body of representative democrats have seen its good results.

Every man in this convention recognizes this as the policy of the party. In Massachusetts it gave us Peck for governor and Vilas for Senator. In Michigan it gave us a democratic legislature and will give us eight electoral votes for president. nI 8819 in Ohio it gave us James Campbell for governor, and 1891 to defeat him it required the power, the wealth and the machinery of the entire republican party. In Pennsylvania it gave us a democratic governor who was kept out of office by the infamous conduct of the republican party. In New Hampshire it gave us a legislature of which we were defrauded. In Illinois it gave us a Palmer for senator, and in Nebraska it gave Boyd for governor. In the great southern states it has continued in power in democratic legislatures. In New Jersey the power of the democracy has been strengthened and the legislature and executive are both democratic. In the great state of New York it gave us David B. Hill for senator and Roswell P. Flower for governor. (Continued cheering.)

With all these glorious achievements it is the wisest and best party policy to nominate again the man whose policy made these successes possible. The people believe that these victories which gave us a democratic house of representatives in 1890 and democratic governors and senators in republican and doubtful states are due to the courage and wisdom of Grover Cleveland, and so believing they recognize him as their great leader.

In presenting his name to the convention, it is no reflection upon any of the masterful leaders of the party.

The victories which have been obtained are not alone the heritage of these states. They belong to the whole party. I feel that every democratic state and that every individual democrat has reason to rejoice and be proud and applaud these splendid successes. The candidacy of Grover Cleveland is not a reflection upon others. It is not antagonistic to any great democratic leader. He comes before this convention not as a candidate for any one state. He is the choice of the great majority of democratic voters. The democracy of New Jersey, therefore, presents to the convention in this, the people's year, the nominee of the people, the plain, blunt, honest citizen, the idol of the democratic masses, Grover Cleveland. (Cheers.)

Great Enthusiasm.

Gov. Abbett proceeded without receiving more than mild applause until he reached that portion of his address where he said, "If there was any doubt existing in my mind of the result of the national contest, I would not urge on behalf of my state the views of its democracy in favor of Grover Cleveland."

The mention of the name of the sage of Buzzard's Bay was a signal for a thunder of cheers. Men and women who thronged the great galleries waved fans, umbrellas and banners. Many of the state delegates arose and, standing on the chairs, joined in the great volume of enthusiasm which seemed to possess the multitude. The Alabama delegation hoisted a Cleveland portrait on the end of an umbrella, which was the signal for renewed cheers.

An alternate for one of the Michigan delegates attempted to carry the Cleveland banner which had once before aroused such enthusiasm, over into the New York delegation. He sought to enter at the end of the rows of seats where Gen. Sickles sat. Great excitement prevailed when Gen. Sickles resisted the intrusion and pushed back the offending alternate.

All over the hall, but principally among the audience, men and women were wild with excitement. After about eight minutes of pandemonium, the chair thought it was about time to take a hand in the disturbance, but nobody paid any attention to him. Away off at the right of the audience a few voices raised rhythmical shout, which soon swelled into a great volume of sound the tune of "Grover Cleveland." A number of delegates joined in the chorus, and thousands of musical feet beat time to the new political slogan.

The Hill Men Got Their Turn.

After a time Governor Abbett proceeded, but when he alluded to Senator Hill, there was an outburst of enthusiasm from the New York delegation.

Twenty-four minutes the demonstration lasted, when the exhausted delegates and audience relapsed into their seats and Gov. Abbett was permitted to proceed a renewed outburst of Cleveland enthusiasm followed, which did not cease for 10 or more minutes.

The confusion was greatly heightened by the violent storm which poured down in a torrent upon the roof of the building and soon drenched the vast assembly. The noise of the rain upon the boards overhead, the rolling of the thunder, rendered it impossible to go ahead with business. The chairman had to abandon his position at his desk on account of the downpouring torrent and an umbrella was raised over his head like a Chinese sunshade over the mandarin in the play of the Mikado.

The secretary at last proceeded in the call of states, beginning with California. Hon. George F. Patton responded in behalf of the delegation seconding Grover Cleveland amidst applause.

Colorado was the next state called, when J. J. O'Donnell announced to the chair that Colorado gave way to New York.

Hon. Dewitt from the New York delegation was put forward to make the speech putting in nomination Senator D. B. Hill and he came forward upon the platform for that purpose.

The continued rain storm and confusion in the hall made it impossible for the speaker to be heard by more than a few in his immediate vicinity. The chairman declared a recess for 15 minutes. On resumption of order Mr. Dewitt proceeded with his speech.

At the conclusion of Mr. Dewitt's speech the entire New York delegation arose and cheered the name of Senator Hill.

COL. FELLOWS.

He Lends His Voice to the Aid of Senator Hill.

Col. Fellows was next recognized and said: The honor has been assigned me in the delegation of which I am a part of seconding, in behalf of the democracy of New York, the nomination of David B. Hill. (Cheers.) It has been my privilege, as very many of the delegates assembled before me know, through many years of the past, through service in which my hairs have grown gray in the interest of democracy, to stand in the presence of the representatives of that party assembled in its national councils and voice the sentiment of the state of New York. I occupy precisely that position to-day. With one unbroken voice, reaching from the cataract upon our western coast to the ocean which washes our eastern shore, she comes here demanding the nomination of Gov. Hill for the presidency. (Cheers.) I am one of those democrats, who, like my brother and colleague that has just left this platform, believe in relying upon democratic sentiment, democratic faith and democratic energy to win our victories. We welcome with gratitude and thankfulness accessions from every quarter. If those who have formerly acted with the republican party, now animated by the consciousness and the reproach of wrong doing in the past, now enlightened as to the principles and purposes of our party, choose to ally their faith with ours, our doors and our hearts alike are open ot receive them. But when they come to us protesting that they must lead and guide, and we must be but the followers; when they come to us telling us that if we will give them a certain name they will ally themselves with us, and if we give them any other they will range themselves in opposition, I tell them that it is not by such rewards as that that we seek their fellowship or their association. (Applause).

What he has done in the state he would do for the nation. Make him president; give him four years in the White House, and there would not be enough left of the republican party to sweep up and carry to its grave. (Long, continued laughter and applause). I do not wonder they hate him. I do not wonder that through their press to-day through the voices of their most prominent leaders, they implore the democratic convention to nominate some other than Hill. (Cries of "That's so;" hisses; "No, no.").

Some one in the gallery proposed three cheers for Cleveland, which were given.

Continuing, Mr. Fellows said: "Maligned, traduced, slandered, vilified as few men have been, this man to those who know him stands before the country, as he stands in the affection of his friends, a man without a shadow of stain, either upon his personal or official career. (Cheers and hisses), the idol of the democracy of New York. (Cheers).

New York comes here now asking the democracy of the nation to entrust to her keeping in one more national battle the interests, the responsibilities, the sacred trusts which hitherto in her state relation she has taken up and discharged so faithfully. I ask you once more to leave the democratic banner in our hands and our keeping.

The conclusion of Mr. Fellows' speech was followed by loud and continuous applause and a grand outburst from the New York delegation.

The roll call continued until Illinois was reached when A. W. Green, of Chicago, seconded the nomination of Cleveland. "Illinois casts 48 votes for Grover Cleveland," were his first words. This clear cut terse announcement brought forth loud cheers and then Green told why Illinois did so.

When Indiana was called Hon. Wm. B. English eloquently seconded the nomination of Mr. Cleveland in a few words as substitute for Hon. Daniel W. Voorhees, who had been taken ill.

The clerk called the state of Iowa and Hon. John M. Duncombe took the platform amid applause and addressed the convention.

GOVERNOR BOIES,

The Western War Horse, Before the Convention.

Mr. Duncombe said:

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Convention:

To-day, for the first time in the history of the American republic, the name of a man whose home is west of the Mississippi river will be presented to a democratic national convention for nomination to the exalted position of president of the United States.

Heretofore the northern, the southern, the eastern and the middle states have furnished all but one of the presidential nominees of the democratic party.

For 35 years the republican party has chosen all but one of its candidates from the west, and the eastern candidate was defeated. For 35 years the democratic party has chosen all its candidates from the east, and during that time only one democratic president has been inaugurated. For over a quarter of a century no man residing outside of the limits of the Empire state has had the honor of a democratic presidential nomination. If the democracy of New York were united to-day her honored statesmen might furnish presidential candidates for a quarter of century to come, and the democracy of the great northwest and the great southwest could not complain or seek to pluck one honor from the brilliant stars which New York has placed in the crown of the republic.

All democrats deeply regret that there is dissension within her borders, which they fear, if a candidate should be nominated from New York would imperil democratic success, and they know that there is a country west of the Mississippi river, purchased and made part of the union by Thomas Jefferson, the father of democracy, where there is but one presidentia candidate; a country forever honored by the bravery of the gallant sons of the south, who fought in its defence under the lion-hearted leader of democracy, Andrew Jackson.

There is a land, the great empire of the gulf, whose brave sons made the name of the Lone Star state immortal in their heroic struggle for liberty, where forever enshrined in memory, are the names of those who were baptized in blood at the Alamo; whose deeds stand forth above the bravest acts of men like mighty mountains on the plain. There is a land, fragrant with flowers and orange groves, where the golden rays of the setting sun are reflected from the waves of the Pacific. There is a land where the glistening snow-capped mountain peaks of Nevada, Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho, Montana and the Dakotas sparkle with their silver and gold. There is a land where hundreds of millions of bushels of wheat and corn, and millions of cattle furnish food for our fathers and mothers in the east. A land filled with schools, colleges and universities unsurpassed. In that land west of the Mississippi is a state larger than New York surrounded by her elder sisters, Missouri and Illinois, and her younger sisters, Nebraska and Minnesota, a state honored on the east by the father and mother of waters and held in their embrace; a state whose springs and brooks and rivers flow on unceasingly to the southern gulf, emblematic of the eternal love which should forever bind in unity the dwellers in the great Mississippi valley. In that state lives a noble son of New York, honored by an election to her legislature over a third of a century ago, a son worthy and well qualified for the highest honor which this great intelligent convention can place upon him. A son who, born and reared in poverty, accustomed to hard labor, has thereby learned to sympathize with the poor and distressed, with the laborers of the land. The name of that noble son of New York and adopted son of Iowa is Horace Boies.

In the days of Lincoln he was a republican, but at that time and until 1880 the republicans of Iowa were ardent advocates of tariff reform as are the democrats of to-day. Year after year they met in their state conventions and resolved in favor of a revenue tariff, but never before that time in favor of a protective tariff. At that time there was no prominent republican in Iowa who favored a protective tariff. Grimes, Kirkwood and Allison were then all tariff reformers.

When the Iowa republicans, 1880, deserted their tariff principles and Iowa followed the worshippers of protection, and, when by sumptuary legislation in Iowa, they confiscated millions of dollars' worth of properly without any compensation, our candidate refused to follow his party, and united with the democratic party. He did this without any hope of political reward. He did it when the democratic party in Iowa had been defeated by a majority of over 78,000. He did it when Iowa was the banner republican state. He was led to this course solely by the courage of his convictions, by his conscience and his innate love of justice.

He Has Fought for the Democracy.

From that time he has fought unceasingly for the cause of democracy. His eminent legal talent led the leaders of the party to offer him the nomination for judge of the supreme court of Iowa, and his name has been frequently mentioned for offices, but since he came to Iowa and until 1889, he has declined to accept any nomination, and only consented to accept the nomination for governor then, at the urgent solicitation of his friends, and when chosen by acclamation. After receiving his nomination his sincere, logical, powerful, truthful and convincing argument brought dismay to the intolerant bosses of the republican party all over Iowa. He abused no one, but was the subject of constant abuse. He kindled the smouldering embers of democracy into a blaze of enthusiasm on every hilltop and in every valley in the state. His scimeter flashed at the head of an army of Iowa democrats, who had fought more than thirty battles, only to be overpowered by numbers, but never conquered. He infused new courage in the hearts of all his followers, and the Iowa democracy, by aid of tariff reformers, and the opponents of sumptuary laws, who have since become democrats, routed the enemy, and placed the laurel wreath of victory upon the head of the hero, Horace Boies.

Again in 1890 his voice was heard rallying the forces of democracy against the iniquities of the obnoxious McKinley law; against intolerance; against sumptuary legislation; against parental government; against centralization; against the tyrannical kingly invention, the force bill, and again the pennant of democracy waved aloft in victory. In 1891, he was again by acclamation placed at the head of the democratic column for re-election; and in the most stubbornly fought political battle that was ever witnessed, when 22,000 more votes were polled than had ever been polled before in any state election, and nearly that number more than in any presidential election, his majority for governor was increased from 6,523 to 8,216, and the entire democratic ticket was elected. This increase in democratic votes came, not from the residents of the cities, but from the farmers of Iowa, who were tired of being impoverished by governmental taxation.

Under his administration the business of the state has been conducted systematically, successfully, honestly and satisfactorily. He has proven his eminent executive ability. He has by his acts silenced the vituperation of his political traducers, and stands to-day at the head of an united democracy in Iowa, as aggressive, as courageous, and as heroic as the noble democracy of Texas, Missouri, Kentucky or any other state. Among the great leaders of the party, no one has sounder views on the tariff, or any political question. His ideas are those of a plain, old-fashioned Jeffersonian democrat. He is by nature a democrat, as well as a democrat from principle. His writings, his speeches and his message prove him to be a statesman, standing at the very head of the list of eminent men of the nation. His firmness, his judgment, his courage, his intelligence, his honesty, his easy assimilation with the masses, his power to make men feel his brotherly affection, his power to give confidence to all his followers, well fit him for a great leader. Iowa democrats love him for the friends he has made, and because he has led them through the wilderness into the promised land.

When our democrntic fathers are convincing themselves that the right to nominate a democratic candidate for president from the east is an exclusive God-given right let them remember that their western sons are of age; and let them do justice to their honored names by doing justice to their sons.

Our candidate has no one to fry fat from lusty protective tariff beneficiaries, to corrupt voters; but around his head beams a halo of honor, of virtue and truth which will, like a pillar of fire in the night time of republican misrule, lead a united host of democrats and liberal independent voters to the glorious day of victory.

If nominated, as a laborer, he will rally the laboring men of the country. As a practical farmer he will rally the farmers all over the land. His conservatism will bring to his standard the solid business of the nation, New England, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, as they study the conservative character of our candidate, and democrats all over the union will thank God that under our leader they can fight the battles of tariff reform unitedly.

In moving the nomination of the candidate of the Iowa democracy, I plead for one who, if nominated, will be supported by every democrat and thousands of independent voters; I plead for the champion of labor, the champion of farmers of the nation. I plead for the rights of that great country west of the Mississippi in extent of over one-half of the nation that never before has had a democratic presidential candidate. I plead for the democracy of 18 states and the territories of that vast empire. I plead for the gallant men of Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Missouri who never falter in their democracy. I plead for the candidate whose nomination will ensure the electoral vote of Iowa to the democratic party. I plead for harmony and for a democratic victory.

The delegates to this convention will make an irreparable mistake if they forget that before November there will be a calm of the surging billows of this ocean of enthusiasm, during which calm, loyal voters in their homes at their firesides, in the midst of their families and with their neighbors and friends, will discuss and decide the presidential question; during which calm every voter will consider who is nearest in his own heart; who is most in sympathy with his own condition, and who will best fill the executive office in that plain, honest, old-fashioned democratic way which the people most dearly love.

But this convention will make no mistake if it shall select as its nominee that man of correct habits; of patriotic motives; of clear cultivated mental vision; of sterling integrity; of calm deliberation and judgment; of manly and moral courage; of deep thought and study; of unflagging industry; that careful, painstaking man, without spot or blemish; that noble son of the east, and adopted son of the west, who has never been defeated; who has no foes in his own party to conciliate; who has no errors to correct and no explanations or apologies to make, and who will, if nominated, fill the struggling, fighting democracy of Iowa, the great west and the entire nation with unconquerable courage. That bold, fearless leader who will in November, if nominated, march at the head of an army of 7,000,000 of voters with 50,000 waving banners under the triumphal arch, and on whose brow will again be placed the wreath of victory; whom Iowa now nominates, honest Horace Boies.

When Mr. Duncombe mentioned the name of Horace Boies as the candidate of Iowa the whole Iowa delegation jumped upon their chairs and sent up a yell, followed by South Carolina, Texas, Mississippi and New York. Gov. Flower and Bourke Cochrane of the latter state setting the time for the cheers. The Boies boom had nothing like the dimensions of the Cleveland and Hill demonstrations earlier in the session. It lasted eight minutes.

I. H. Detwiler & Co. is making extensive preparations to accommodate the immense crowds which will attend their special sale of Elm and Mulberry street addition, Friday and Saturday. Ample street car facilities have been obtained, and a fine ride will be extended to all who desire to attend. The special inducements are worth considering, and the property of itself is well worth the investment. The terms are reasonable and prices low.

WHAT'S THIS?

Prof. Adams Elected a Professor in the Ohio State University.

This morning's Columbus Press contains this information, which will be read with gratification on the one hand, and great regret on the other:

"The board of trustees of the Ohio State university have elected Prof. Henry C. Adams, of Toledo, as superintendent of the manual training school. Prof. Adams has been connected with the Toledo schools for a number of years. His salary has been fixed at $2,250, and his term begins as soon as the building is completed so as to require his services."

HE KNOCKED HIM SILLY.

And Will Have to Pay His Board for a Week.

Sidney Carney, a young Englishman who ran away from his home in Manchester, Eng., and had wandered as far as Toledo, went into Hubbard's lumber yard yesterday afternoon to lie down. When the time came to close the yard, Jacob Zimmerman, the watchman, found young Carney and hit him with such force with a stick as to knock him insensible. The young man was found by an officer and carried to the police station. Zimmerman was arrested. This morning Carney was much recovered and Zimmerman was released on promise to pay Carney's board for a week to allow him to fully recover.

THE SALE IS OVER

And Mr. Cushing and His Customers Must be Satisfied.

The last day of Cushing's sale of Leap Year addition lots closed last evening, and it was one of the most successful events of the kind ever conducted in Toledo. Of the 48 lots put up for sale there were 46 sold. There is one important feature of this sale, which will result in much future good to Toledo, and that is a building restriction incorporated in the terms of each sale. The owner of the lots cannot erect a house to cost less than $1,500.

The holders of the tickets on the beautiful parlor suit attended Wheeler's opera house last evening, where the drawing was conducted. Miss Hattie Borsuch held the lucky number and is to-day the owner of this valuable furniture.

'TWAS A JOLLY CROWD

Of School Children Which Went on An Excursion To-Day.

As usual, Father Hannin was out with his best smile to-day at the head of a procession of the scholars of his parochial school and their parents, who were on the move for their annual excursion. The Presque Isle band accompanied the party, which numbered fully one thousand, and as the company marched to the steamer Pastime the scene was a beautiful one. About 9 o'clock the boat, completely filled, pulled out for Turtle Light, and after the ride returned to Presque Isle where dinner was served and a program of all kinds of amusements indulged in. The occasion will long be remembered as one of the events in the history of St. Patrick's parish. Manager Quale and his assistants did all in their power to make the the affair a success.

THIS IS THE SITUATION

In Regard to the Bids for Heating Now Under Consideration.

The incident regarding the bids for heating handed in to the board of education the other night seems to show this state of affairs:

A concern in Cincinnati has adopted all that is good in its system from Smead, and a suit is now pending by which Smead proposes to establish his rights.

In the meantime the concern underbid Smead and ask the board of education to believe that their system is fully equal to the one they copy.

The board of education has the Smead system in every school in the city. Its work is perfection, and the expense of running it much less than that of any other system ever tried here.

Can the board afford to experiment with a counterfeit? Is it honest to the city to take work from a Toledo factory and give it to a Cincinnati concern?

There can be only one answer to these questions.

COUSIN TO HON. H. P. PLATT,

Of This City, is Arthur K. DeLany, An Alaska Delegate.

The press dispatches this morning contained this paragraph in the proceedings of the Chicago convention:

"A ripple of enthusiasm swept over the convention when Mr. DeLany, of Alaska, conveyed the information that the great cause of tariff reform had traversed every zone from the torrid to the frigid by submitting his credentials as a delegate from Alaska, and announcing himself as the representative of a pioneer people engaged in building up civilization in the wildest and most remote dominion of the republic."

The gentleman referred to is a cousin to Hon. H. P. Platt, our well-known fellow citizen, who feels a just pride in the young man. He is the son of a Baptist minister, now located in Wisconsin.

Mr. Platt telegraphed Mr. DeLany this morning, requesting him to visit Toledo to help the people ratify Grover Cleveland's nomination, and it is altogether probable he will come.

MAHER & GROSH DISSOLVE.

A Firm that Can Testify to the Efficacy of Advertising.

An old firm yesterday made a change that ends a 15-year partnership. Mr. Emil Grosh bought the interest of Wm. H. Maher in the stock of Maher & Grosh. Mr. Grosh will continue the business under the style of The Maher & Grosh Cutlery company, but is not incorporated. The old firm has made a world wide reputation for itself in advertising cutlery. Mr. Lord, the head of the Lord & Thomas concern of Chicago, said to the Bee: "When any one asks me if a certain thing will pay to advertise, I always point to Maher & Grosh. I say to them if a concern can take a thing sold everywhere, as a jack-knife is, and make that pay by advertising, what is there on th's green earth that cannot be made to pay by advertising?" Maher & Grosh spent an average of $10,000 a year for 15 years just advertising their own brand of cutlery. They made it pay, as judicious advertising always will pay, and now Mr. Maher retires from active work for a little while at least. Those who know him will not readily believe that he will long be content to remain inactive, though his duties as director in two banks will serve to keep him out of mischief. His many friends will wish him success in anything he may undertake.

WILL BE HEARD

To-morrow—The Street Railroad Injunction Case.

The motion to dissolve the injunction obtained in common pleas court by the Toledo Electric Street Railway company to restrain the Consolidated Street Railway from constructing certain tracks in the city, has been set for hearing before Judge Harmon to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.

DR. HERBERT FLINT

Continues to Please Large Audiences at the People's.

Dr. Flint, the mesmerist, continues to draw large audiences at the People's theater. He gives a wonderful entertainment, placing a dozen ladies and gentlemen under the hypnotic and mesmeric influences and making them do countless laughable things for the amusement of the audience. The doctor's performances are of a great interest also from a scientific point of view.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Peter J. Eiseman Claimed by the Grim Destroyer.

One week ago Peter J. Eiseman, a well-known young railroad man, was obliged to leave his desk on account of sickness and to-day his friends were shocked to learn of his death, which occurred last night. Mr. Eiseman was 26 years old, well and favorably known, and was a member of Court Lucas, Ancient Order of Foresters. He leaves a wife and four children.

GREETED ON RETURN

From Their Wedding Tour—A Happy Time.

At 8 o'clock last evening about 50 couples gathered at the residence of Nicholas Wagner at 703 South St. Clair street, and from there the merry party proceeded to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fischer, on St. Clair street, where they took the place by storm.

Mr. and Mrs. Fischer had just got home from a bridal trip, and their friends arranged this pleasant surprise in honor of their return. The guests proceeded forthwith to make themselves at home, and by the time the host and hostess had recovered from their surprise were ready for an evening of social enjoyment. The young people indulged in an informal hop at Bittman's hall, just across the street, while others found pleasure in cards and social intercourse. A dainty supper was served at 11, and at a late hour the guests departed, wishing the couple a continuation of the evening's happiness.

THOSE RESIGNATIONS.

Citizens Say the Entire Board Should Resign.

The purpose of Mr. Romeis to resign from the board of gas trustees is very generally approved.

Mr. L. S. Baumgardner this morning said it was just the thing to do. "To attempt to operate the plant on the present plans," he said, "is a mistake. Let the entire board resign."

Gen. J. S. Kountz spoke in a similar way. "The plant," he said, "is evidently getting in bad shape and something has got to be done.

A manufacturer said to a Bee this morning: "Let all the gas trustees resign and then let the mayor appoint five of the largest resident tax-payers to serve one or more years without pay. Politics should not have any part in such an office. We have had all we require on the pipe-line branch of this business, and now we want the gas part taken in hand."

THEY WERE ALL THERE.

Babies Fat, Lean, Long and Short.

The People's Outfitting company on Summit street, advertised to give baby cabs to the heaviest and lightest baby under one year old, and yesterday was set for the "weighing match." Every baby in town was there but one, and that one was sent for, as it was thought he would outweigh all competitors. He was found wanting, however, and a sturdy little 11-months' old German boy, Little Louis Kreiger, who resides at 1025 Gordon street, and weighed 27 pounds and 4 ounces, captured the cab. The light weigt winner was Miss Lizzie Hartman, daughter of Adam Hartman, a jeweler with M. Judd. Miss Lizzie had reached the extreme age of ten days, and weighed six pounds and fifteen ounces. She resides at 646 Bartlett street.

COUNCIL COMMITTEES

Struggle With Natural Gas, Smoke Consumers and Gambling Tools.

The council committee on gas met last evening and indulged in another fruitless discussion on the price that shall be charged by the Northwestern Natural Gas company. An ordinance was presented with blanks for the time and prices, and the only one of these that was filled was the one stating the time for which the ordinance should be enforced. This was fixed at September 1, 1896.

There was some discussion as to price, and the majority of the committee seemed to favor a rate at about 12 cents, but they wanted more information and decided to lay the matter over for two weeks, when the representatives of the Northwestern and the city gas trustees will be invited to confer with the committee.

* * * *

The committee on rules and by-laws approved an ordinance requiring smoke consumers to be placed on engines, locomotives and furnaces where soft coal is used, and also an ordinance for the seizure and destruction of gambling instruments and devices.

SCOTTISH RITE REUNION.

Work Begun and Will Continue Until To-Morrow Night.

The twenty-second annual reunion of Scottish Rite Masons in the valley of Toledo was begun at Masonic temple this morning and will continue to-morrow, and will conclude with a banquet to-morrow evening. The Neophytes forming the class that will take the degrees are as follows: William Schuyler Daly, Otto Jaeger, Thomas Reed, Charles Irving Barnes, George Anthony Heinl, Emanuel V. Wyesbrod, Toledo; Andrew Burgland, Charles Henry Kettering, William Adams Kettering, Robert Talbot Whitaker, Defiance, and Alexander Johnston, Bowling Green.

There are a large number of visitors present from cities in northern Ohio, and there will be more before the reunion is finished.

The quartet furnishing the music consists of Miss Doolittle, Mrs. F. R. Williams, Mr. W. A. Howell and Mr. F. R. Williams, with Mr. Theodore Ecker as accompanist.

EIGHTH EXHIBITION

A large number of people availed themselves of the invitation to attend the eighth annual exhibition of the work of the Toledo Manual Training school this morning from 9 to 12, and the exhibition was well worth a visit. In the machine shop and blacksmith shop on the ground floor the boys were working with a will; also in the carpenter and pattern shops boys were turning out work that evinced much skill; in the drawing room was exhibited work done by the wood carving class, and in the wood carving shop a portion of the grammar class was at work. The exhibition in the sewing room of plain sewing, pattern draughting and dressmaking consisted of some very fine work, beautiful tea gowns, dressing jackets and complete suits composing a part of the work shown to admiring visitors.

In the cooking school was spread a tempting feast, the appetising viands being prepared by the middle high school girls.

The free hand drawing room was another point of general interest and the works of art exhibited here received much praise. The finished work by the wood carving class was especially fine, beautiful side-boards, easels, writing desks, picture frames, tetes, etc., composing the exhibit. The eighth exhibition is perhaps the best, the work being of a higher order than in any previous year, and the visitors were confirmed in their opinion that the chief pride of Toledo is this monument to industry—Toledo's Manual Training school.

LOTS OF FUN

At the United States Express Sale of Unclaimed Packages.

There is plenty of fun at the United States Express sale of unclaimed packages on St. Clair street. The packages are sold blind and the purchasers don't know what they are getting until they open them up. Yesterday afternoon one man bought a dead dog in a box for 30 cents. Many purchased bunches of circulars, hand bills and almanacs. About one in ten packages cantains something of real value. The express company gets the big end of the thing all around. The packages sell at from 40 to 75 cents each.

PROMINENT RAILROADERS

Will Play Ball for the Benefit of the Boys' Home.

Saturday afternoon, July 2, a lively base ball game will be arranged between local nines for the benefit of the Toledo Boys' Home. A picked nine, of which W. H. Young of the C., H. V. & T. railroad is captain, challenges the Toledo & Ohio Central nine. The game will be played at Olympic park. The picked nine is made up as follows: Catcher, John Garvin; pitcher, H. H. Watters; first base, F. N. Foster, of the Kanawha Dispatch; second base, Ben Vail, of the T., A. A. & N. M. railroad; third base, T. H. Watters; shortstop, W. H. Young; right field, Wm. Farnsworth, of the B. & O.; center field, O. R. Mathews; left field, George Blankemeier. The railroad men are great hustlers and there will be some fun.

ARBITRATORS' DECISION

In the Brewers' Controversy Satisfactory to Both Sides.

Messrs. Booth and Fellows, whom the officials of the Buckeye Brewing com pany chose to arbitrate the difficulty between their employes and themselves, have submitted the following proposition, which will be accepted:

To the Officers of the Buckeye Brewing Co., and the Members of Local Union, No. 87.

Gentlemen—The undersigned, your committee of arbitration, beg leave to submit the following, as in our estimation, a fair adjustment of the differences between the members of the union and the company:

Inasmuch as the two men in question, Messrs. Zeigler and Miller, have for a considerable time been receiving $70 per month for their services, and as the extra work involved upon them by the care of their team and wagon more than puts them on a footing with the peddlers of the company who have the services of a helper to care for the team and wagon and further to get the same wages for the same class of work on a more uniform basis. We therefore respectfully submit: that the wages of the above named persons, Messrs. Zeigler and Miller shall be $71.50 per month, and that their work shall be governed by the same rules that have previously prevailed.

Hoping that the above decision will prove satisfactory, and thanking both sides for the courtesy show, we are, gentlemen,

Yours Respectfully,
Robt. F. Booth,
Wm. Fellows.

Again, Grover Cleveland.

Not until now since the politics of the country was dominated by two great organizations have the American people been called upon twice to make choice between the same two candidates for the presidency.

In some respects the campaign of 1892 will be similar to that of 1888, for now as then the tariff is the leading issue between the parties, more pronounced now than then, because under the present republican administration the task masters have raised their standard of extortion, and a willing congress has responded to their demands.

Grover Cleveland is the logical candidate of the political organization that is pledged upon principle to revise the tariff laws in the interest of the whole people, irrespective of conditions. More than any other American citizen he made the question so deep seated in the minds of the people that they cannot get away from it, and it will remain the issue until the restrictions upon trade are removed never to be reimposed. This is the kind of a campaign the democratic party is prosecuting; this is the war in which the democratic party has enlisted, and every soldier of the reform party will veteranize and leave the strife as a legacy to his sons, if necessary, if it be so prolonged, until the wall of protection for the classes shall be battered down, so that one stone shall no longer stand upon another.

Who, of the sixty millions of American citizens better than Grover Cleveland—who so well as he—is the captain general of the mighty army of tariff reformers? Name him. He lives not in this republic. Politicians may doubt the expediency of nominating any man thrice in succession for the presidency; spoilsmen may see hard picking ahead under the administration of this candidate, but the people, the toilers for daily bread, and the great business element of this busy country, know he can be trusted and that no interest in the line of American progress will be neglected by his administration.

The thousands who attended the convention which has just placed Mr. Cleveland in nomination attest the popularity of the man. They represented no office holding class. They represented no selfish class. They represented no scheming class. They represented the sturdy manhood of the city, the village, the shop and the farm. A forceful leader of cold politics tauntingly remarked at the convention, when somewhat in temper, that "this class of people will nominate Cleveland, now let them elect him." The words became prophesy. "This class of people" made a triumphal procession in convention and will make a glorious victory at the election. Undoubtedly new alignments will be made. Many voters of both parties will change, but in every state, in every county and in every township, the grandeur of Grover Cleveland's character and statesmanship forms the nucleus around which campaign success will gather, and from which the star of democratic success will shine brightly.

Under the Cleveland banner the democratic party musters. The same old flag floats to the breeze of good politics. The grandest American statesman is the representative and the leader of the greatest of political parties. The flag which he floats we all claim as our flag. His cause is American, his campaign is American, his success will be American, cosmopolitan, metropolitan, all-absorbing—as wide as the earth in the interest of American trade, and so broad as the breezes of the ocean shall spread American sails to catch and to hold and to expand trade with all nations.

"To your tents, O, Israel," and right nobly battle, for your cause is just and your victory shall be complete.

The Unwritten Ethics.

Make your money in the United States where the natural advantages are, just now, the greatest in the world. And in addition to this, where laws are all enacted for the benefit of the large moneyed establishments. In fact they can buy laws to suit themselves. Returns are quick and profits great. Then, go abroad in Europe or whatever country you like, to spend it. You can live cheaper there and enjoy the advantages of old civilizations, the accumulations of centuries of art and literature, the benefit of deep and true culture in music, medicine and philosophy, and of the "markets of the world" where you get things cheap and have first choice. Keep an eye on political movements and your foot on the lever at home that the income be assured and steady, and that the home producers do not get too large-visioned and so, discontented with their toil.

In the United States these toilers vote for legislators and measures, but the law-protected monopolies have gotten them pretty well in hand, or can manage to manipulate affairs in spite of them. These are the unwritten, but the not-mistaken ethics of the powers that be in our republic to-day.

English capitalists are "onto the scheme": protected prices, cheap labor, control of the market. It is accounted a great sign of prosperity that English firms are moving their plants over here. English country gentlemen are not flocking to our farms, and skilled English artisans to our trades and professions. The monopolist who is after the shekels assured by taxation of the country, and the starving pauper whom he wants to delve for him—these are chiefly the foreigners who are now helping on our prosperity.

These facts cannot be choked off by the cry of "calamity shrieker," pessimist, or alarmist. Read of the slave pens along the line of the railroad which the great Vanderbilt and the wonderful Depew are building in the Adirondacks. Read the story of suffering, privation and rebellion in the great Carnegie's mills and mines. Read the testimony from a half dozen "slummers" in New York, both American and English, that "there is more vice and destitution, per population, in New York than there is in Paris, Vienna, London or Berlin." Don't you see, the "business interests" that the organs of the administration prate about in their campaign pleading for continuance take in none of these unwelcome facts? The unwritten ethics concerning this side of the picture are, "deny and cover up."

Now, the Election.

It is fair to presume that the masterly convention work of Wm. C. Whitney is to extend to the campaign. If so, Mr. Cleveland's election is assured. The man who single handed held Tammany in respectful obedience in Chicago can conciliate Tammany at home. The man who massed delegation after delegation in Chicago, like a general of many wars, can plan a campaign that will close with complete victory. This is the logic of the situation. Mr. Cleveland can not only be elected, but he can carry his own state beyond doubt if he will commission Mr. Whitney to take charge of the management and arrrange details. This is the sentiment of every democrat who attended the Chicago convention. Mr. Cleveland owes this much to the party. He can not do more to make his election an assured fact from the start to finish.

At the Minneapolis convention there was only one display of marching clubs, that one being for the candidate who was defeated. At Chicago clubs by the score floated all sorts of banners and marched for democratic success. So they will march through the campaign, and march to victory in November.

The cause of Cleveland and tariff reform will have no more faithful champion this campaign than the Bee, and in the interest of good campaign work in the three states in which it circulates we request the friends of the cause to push its circulation in every direction.

Charley Foster is recovering from his mad fit about the Ohio delegation's disgraceful break in Minneapolis and now he calls it a case of mistaken zeal and loyalty to an Ohio man. Mr. Foster evidently wishes to be in favor with all factions.

Mr. Harrison was nominated by the office holders. Mr. Cleveland was nominated by delegates representing the will of the people. There is a mighty difference, as the bread and butter brigade will discover during the campaign.

The produce exchanges of the country might as well cease their opposition to the Hatch bill. It is bound to become a law; its enforcement is quite another thing. Very likely it will be a dead letter within a year.

To elect a democratic president without the electoral vote of New York would make new combinations and a stronger party, for New York would thereafter "pull in the harness." Maybe it will be so this year.

The Courier-Journal says, "if William Henry Harrison won on hard cider, why can't Benjamin Harrison win on ice?" Doesn't the Journal know the difference between hard cider and ice?

Genuine fusion of the democratic and alliance parties in Kansas may signify the election of a president by the house of representatives. That is an object worth working for in Kansas.

Mr. Cleveland is especially strong in Northwestern Ohio. Here in Toledo democrats are all Cleveland men. Now, boys, a strong pull to make Lucas county democratic in November.

How can republicans "begin an aggressive campaign" when their whole stock in trade is to defend their bad legislation, extravagant expenditures and broken pledges?

Ohio is good democratic battle ground. A loyal press will push the work and the administration will find reason to watch the twenty-three Buckeye electoral votes.

The convention was the place for the expression of honest differences. The campaign is the place for united and harmonious work.

Here's to W. C. Whitney, the best political organizer in the United States.

Cleveland, and tariff reform. It has a familiar ringing sound.

Why doesn't Wanamaker ratify?

TEMPERANCE MEETING

Of the Non-Partisan and Non-Sectarian W. C. T. U.

Afternoon Session Addressed by Mrs. Phinney

And Others—The Bohemian Missionary Mrs. Josephene Zemon, Spoke on Foreign Work and Made a Plea.

The afternoon session of the non-partisan W. C. T. U. conference was devoted to reports on progress made in the different branches of temperance work, and an address by Mrs. Phinney and several local speakers.

The evening meeting was opened with devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. Dr. McGaw, after which Miss Phinney was introduced. She said she had been asked to speak of the division existing in W. C. T. U. work; why a withdrawal was made—in fact to state what the non-partisan W. C. T. U. was, and why it was. She said the subject was a distasteful one to her; she preferred to forget the things that were behind and press forward toward those that were before. However, as she was specially requested to make an explanation of the whys and wherefores of this separate organization, she proceeded to do so, saying what is well known, to temperance people, that the indorsement of the prohibition party caused those who thought they could do most good along non-partisan and non-sectarian lines to withdraw, and thus was formed the non-partisan temperance union.

At the conclusion of her address she introduced Mrs. Josephine Zemon, a Bohemian lady, who is doing splendid work for temperance among the Bohemians of Cleveland and other cities. Mrs. Zemon is a brilliant speaker, and it is to be regretted that there was not a larger number present. She spoke of the good that can be done among the foreigners; that while they come to this country with demoralized habits, they are susceptible to good influences, and if the better class of American citizens would extend a helping hand and try to inculcate the principles of temperance and morality into the minds of the foreigners, instead of holding aloof, and allowing them to get their impressions of Americans from the most depraved classes, the emigration problem would be solved. Instead of doing this we scorn the poor emigrant and ape the tilted nobility of Europe. She closed with an earnest appeal to Americans to be patriotic; to stand firmly for the right. This country will soon be flooded with all the nationalities on the globe; let us require them to conform to our habits and customs in the matter of Sabbath observance and temperance in all things.

Mrs. Zemon is a journalist of considerable reputation, and devotes her entire time and talents to temperance work.

Although the audiences were not large, the ladies feel that the day was a profitable one, and that good will result.

THE KARNIVAL.

Closing Performance at the Wheeler's.

The Affair Was Unique and Decidedly Attractive—Cushing and Freeman Contributed to Its Success.

Prof. Basel's Karnival of Merchants, given under the auspices of the Ladies' Union of Westminster church was presented at the Wheeler opera house for the second and last time yesterday evening. The audience was fair-sized, but not so large as the entertainment deserved. What the audience lacked in numbers, however, they made up in enthusiasm, and the applause was hearty and long continued.

This Karnival is quite novel and of a very high order of merit. After an overture by the People's Theater orchestera, eight little girls appeared and sang "John Brown," in a humorous manner, and Prof. Basel gave an exhibition of paper tearing, producing some very beautiful designs.

The drawing for a set of furniture, given away by Mr. H. H. Cushing, to those who attended his Leap Year addition sale, was made on the stage. The numbers were placed in a box by Prof. Basel and a little girl drew out a ticket containing the name of Miss Hattie Gorsuch, 1117 French street, and she was declared the lucky winner of the furniture.

Then the carnival proper began, consisting of a pretty march by over 100 young ladies who appeared one at a time and dressed to represent the business of some merchant. This march was interspersed with numerous tableaux, with calcium light effects, these also representing business firms.

Of course all of the young ladies were beautiful, and many elaborate and handsome costumes were presented. The decorations of the dresses consisted of the wares of the firms represented, and the effect was very pretty.

The conclusion of the entertainment was a magnificent grand march participated in by all of the young ladies, and it was one of the finest spectacles ever placed on the opera house stage.

At each of the entertainments the audience voted for the best advertising costume of the carnival, and last evening the prize, a fine silver and glass toilet bottle, donated by J. J. Freeman, was presented to Miss Florence Bodman, who represented Mrs. Suder, the florist. Her dress was really a fairy costume of flowers and was deserving of the honor.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Once, twice, three times, and for the last time, hurrah for Cleveland.—St. Louis Republic.

Grover Cleveland has been tried and has not been found wanting. Because of his great ability, his unfaltering integrity and his experience in the office, because in his acts, utterances and principles he embodies the political faith of the democracy of the nation, and because he possesses the unbroken confidence of the people.—Grand Rapids Democrat.

The devotion of the democratic masses to Cleveland is something almost sublime. It is no vulgar hero worship, but a sentiment alike honorable to the man and the party. The ex-president, when he signed his famous tariff message, exhibited a moral heroism only equaled by Old Hickory when he took by the throat the old United States bank and literally choked the life out of it.—Atlanta Journal.

If Mr. Cleveland is nominated he can and will carry New York by a safe majority. He can poll more votes outside of his party than any man who can be named. Those in his party who would prefer another candidate will nevertheless vote for him rather than for a republican. If not, then they are not democrats and are not to be depended upon, no matter who shall be the nominee.—Wilkesbarre (Pa.) Leader.

A republican candidate who could have commanded the undivided support of his party in New York might have compelled the democrats to go outside of New York for their candidate. The nomination of Harrison practically decided the result in Chicago. The nominee of the Chicago convention will be the next president of the United States and his name is Grover Cleveland.—Minneapolis Times.

In nominating Mr. Cleveland, as the News has always contended, the democrats select their strongest and ablest man. Comparison with any other name that has been mentioned only emphasizes the truth of this statement. With Mr. Harrison the republican standard-bearer, and Mr. Cleveland the democratic, there is no reason why the campaign should not be conducted in manly fashion, with decency and dignity, and calm discussion of principles and policies.—Indianapolis News.

If it is true that Mr. Cleveland cannot carry New York, as Tammany and Senator Vest say, the New York Times wonders why it is that Mr. Whitney is wasting his time over a weak candidate, and asks: "Whose opinion about New York democratic politics is worth the more, that of George G. Vest of Kansas City or that of William C. Whitney of New York city?" But it is not necessary to take alone either the assurance of Mr. Whitney or the New York Times. The World, which boasts of independent democracy and which bases its opinion "not on personal preference, but on the result of careful research and inquiry," declares that if any democrat can carry New York Grover Cleveland can. The Brooklyn Eagle says: "Not only can Cleveland 'carry New York,' but his vote here would lead that for any other nominee of his party." The Buffalo Courier says: "It may be doubted whether in the present condition of the party in this state any candidate could be selected who would poll as large a democratic vote as Mr. Cleveland." The Rochester Herald, which heretofore has been neutral, says: "If the issues on which the democracy will renew its appeal to the people cannot triumph in New York with Cleveland as the nominee, we cannot see that they are destined to triumph this year at all." And so the opinions of the press, might be copied to fill many columns of space and to represent hundreds of New York newspapers.—Kansas City Star.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

Local Democracy Will Celebrate His Nomination.

The Very Heavens Joined In Jubilating and the Entire Country Echoes a Triumphant Response—Some Interviews.

All night long local democrats and not a few republicans remained in and around the telegraph offices to learn the result of the Chicago convention.

The cheers which greeted the announcement of Mr. Cleveland's nomination was in striking contrast to the disgusted and disgruntled crowd which received in a similar way the result of the Minneapolis convention.

Steps have been taken to have a jubilation, and an effort will be made to have a volley of 100 guns fired this evening.

On the streets, in the offices, everywhere, the announcement of Cleveland's nomination was received with the greatest enthusiasm.

Mr. Geo. W. Davis to a Bee this morning said:

"Mr. Cleveland's nomination means the confident return of the democratic party to power. He has the confidence of the country, the business men and masses generally of the country behind him, and I have not the slightest doubt of Mr. Cleveland's election. He is clean-handed, clear-headed and wisely conservative. Yes, Tammany will support him, and you will see New York give him one of the largest votes ever given a democrat."

Col. S. C. Reynolds was enthusiastic over the nomination.

"I feel as certain as I am of anything that Cleveland will be elected," he said, and I believe that republicans know and feel that he will be the next president. I predict a tidal wave that will sweep the country for Cleveland from Maine to California."

Other prominent democrats were equally as enthusiastic and spoke in similar terms of the nomination.

The pyrotechnic display in the heavens at an early hour this morning, just at the moment when the ballot was being taken, set the crowds in the street wild with delight.

"The very angels are singing 'Hail to the Chief,'" said an enthusiast.

"It means Heaven's approval of the people's choice," another said.

There was more genuine enthusiasm to the square inch on the streets of Toledo last night and this morning than has been or will be over Harrison's nomination during the entire campaign.

Wauseon, June 23.—(Special)—A series of cycle races will be held by the Wauseon Cycling club July 4, 1892, on the N. W. O. fair grounds at this place. Prizes amounting to over $200 will be hung up.

Four of the races will be open to outsiders, and a number of expert riders will be here.

THE INJUNCTION DISSOLVED

The Council Can Issue Gas Bonds if it Wants To,

So Far as Legal Restraint is Concerned—Judge Pugsley Dissolves the Injunction.

The injuction case filed by Thomas S. Merrell, to restrain the city from issuing gas bonds, is now out of common pleas court entirely.

As was stated in the Bee yesterday Judge Pugsley granted a temporary injunction yesterday afternoon.

City Solicitor Read filed a motion at once to vacate the preliminary order, which was submitted to the court and granted and injunction dissolved.

Mr. Read then filed a demurrer to the petition on the ground that it did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. The demurrer was sustained by the court and the petition dismissed. The plaintiff's attorneys gave notice of appeal and the court fixed the bond at $200.

As soon as this bond is given the case will be taken into the circuit court. It will now be necessary for the plaintiff to make application in circuit court for a preliminary injunction, after which the real battle will begin, the proceedings in common pleas being only a skirmish.

NAPOLEON DOINGS.

Sudden Death of a Well Known Man.

Municipal Notes and Personal Mention of General Public Interest.

Napoleon, June 23.—(Special)—John Reidelbaugh, aged about 60 years, was found dead yesterday afternoon under an apple tree on Bigford's farm, about three miles south of Napoleon. From surroundings it was evident that he had just finished his dinner when death seized him. It is presumed that excessive heat caused his demise.

Although Company F and the Sixteenth regiment band were almost solid in their support of Col. Keyes for re-election, both organizations think that Col. Bunker will make a most worthy successor and keep the regiment up to its very high standard.

This city is somewhat worked up over the canine creation. A dog belonging to D. Hudson became mad and bit a score of others, whereat it was not only shot, but the council passed an ordinance requiring all dogs to be muzzled under penalty of death; also those dogs bitten are ordered to be penned up until the ordinance goes into effect, a period of 10 days from notice.

The contract of the Beard Electric Light company with the corporation expired this week and a new one was signed for three months, when the council expects to put in its own plant. The stipulations of the new contract are the same as the old one.

Word was received here yesterday from Wishawawa, Mich., that Wm. Herbolsheimer, formerly of Napoleon, had died at his home in that city of diphtheria. Mrs. Herbolsheimer, his mother, and sister, Mrs. Theodore Suhr, departed for that place. The remains will not be brought home.

Roy Heller has returned from Ann Arbor and will spend his vacation with his parents in Napoleon.

Frank Harrison and Gale B. Orwig, two Harvard boys, have returned to Napoleon for the summer.

Miss Theresa Bernstein has returned to Defiance after several days' visit with friends in Napoleon.

Mrs. R. B. Heller has returned from a month's visit with the family of J. Brown, Delphos.

J. P. Parker, of Van Wert, spent the fore port of the week with D. E. Rummell and family.

Misses Jenette Ulrich, Allie Hahn and Sue Wilson spent Tuesday with friends in Wauseon.

Mrs. F. M. Baldwin, of Toledo, spent a week with her sister, Mrs. McIntosh, returning yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Foust, of Defiance, are spending a week with the parents of Mr. Foust.

BOARDMAN & GRAY PIANOS

ESTABLISHED 1837.

Sold continuously since 1870 at 219 Summit Street.

This make, sold in large numbers for more than 21 years by a reliable house, recommended and indorsed by nearly all of the best musicians and teachers in Toledo, has become a formidable barrier to the sale of other first-class pianos offered by competing dealers and their agents, by reason of their constantly increasing sale and popularity. Competitors, alarmed and uneasy, resort to many unreasonable as well as untrue statements, which they work off on confiding individuals, and cause them to be circulated in this city and elsewhere. Among these old chestnuts, is the statement that "The Whitney & Currier company manufacture the Boardman & Gray, or have a proprietary interest in their manufacture, and are actuated by that interest, to praise their merit and push their sale." The first part of this statement is untrue. This company has no proprietary interest in the manufacture of any piano. It is actuated in recommending the Boardman & Gray piano by the same motives which actuate any honest individual in recommending that which he knows to be of superior merit, and also by the same motives any one would have in pushing the sale of any successful meritorious article in which a reasonable profit may be realized, and that which is true of Boardman & Gray in this respect, is true of other makes this company has for sale. The superior facilities the Whitney & Currier company has in purchasing, enable it to give greater value for a like sum of money than can be had of its competitors. No other house can show an equal line of first-class Pianos, nor the number from which to select in making a purchase. All are invited to call and see for themselves, whether wishing to buy or not.

THE WHITNEY & CURRIER CO., 219 Summit street.

Why Should Piano Dealers and Their Agents Go Out of Their Way to Decry the Superior Merits of the Boardman & Gray Pianos? The Reason is Obvious.

Maybe you think that the word "belfry" was derived from "bell," but the etymologists say this is not the case. It is from the Middle English "berfry," a watch tower. The first syllable of "berfry" is a corruption of "borough," and the second of "free." As the practice grew of hanging "bells" in such towers, people reminded themselves of the fact by changing the word "berfry" into the modern

AN INTERCEPTED MUTINY.

On the 5th of May the Mary Kyle, 1,305 tons register, cleared from the Manilla islands for the port of Philadelphia, laden with sugar. On the outward bound voyage we had lost three able-bodied seamen during a terrific storm, two of them having been blown from the yard arms while reefing sail and one swept into the sea by a great wave which broke clean over the vessel. We continued short-handed to the Phillipines, where we shipped two Swedes, Christiansen Jansen and Peter Inbergston. While loading sugar at Manilla four English sailors, who formed part of our crew, deserted to a British brig just setting sail for Liverpool, and so, being left five hands short of a full crew, Capt. Myers had to look about him for what material might be had in this outlandish port. It was hard to find men that a cautious ship-master would take even on suspicion; but at last the captain selected a couple of brawny Spaniards, a Pole, Skolgard by name, who could speak only a dozen words of English, and two more Swedes, who looked like strong, honest fellows, though rather stupid and slow.

When we hoisted anchor and set sail for home, therefore, we had a decidedly mixed and not very harmonious crew, about half Americans and the other half, as it seemed to us, a peculiarly unsavory potpourri of foreigners. I was serving as first officer and had had more to do with the new men, after they were shipped, than Capt. Myers himself. They seemed rather a hard lot to start on a three or four months' cruise with, and I took the liberty of saying as much to Capt. Myers. He admitted the fact, but said there seemed to be no alternative, as better material was not to be had, and the owners of the vessel had peremptorily demanded that she sail before the middle of May. Accordingly we hoisted anchor on the 5th, having completed stowing the cargo the day before, and set sail, with a prosperous wind, for America.

For two weeks all went well. The weather was all that could be desired. The wind held fresh and favorable. We encountered no adverse currents, the ship was easily managed, and all hands seemed cheerful and contented. Then, suddenly, the wind failed and we lay almost becalmed for several days. This forced inactivity seemed to breed restlessness among the men, especially the recently shipped foreigners. But as yet there was no sign of insubordination. At length, on the afternoon of the third day of calm, Capt. Myers, chancing to come forward somewhat unexpectedly, caught the Spaniards and Swedes gambling on deck for money stakes. Being a strict disciplinarian, and moreover a consistent member of the Methodist church, Capt. Myers repremanded the men sternly, took away their dice, and ordered them, as punishment, short rations for 36 hours.

This was the beginning of the trouble. There was dark scowling and ominous muttering among the Swedes and Spaniards for the next two days. Spaniards especially are revengeful fellows, and never forget an injury until they imagine they have canceled it in full.

On the fourth day a breeze sprang up, but it was dead against us. Even that went down at nightfall, and the ship lazily tossed in slowly heaving, almost imperceptible swells.

In the meantime I had cautioned the second officer to keep a close watch on the new men, especially the Spaniards, for I suspected mischief of some sort was brewing. So far as I could discover none of the new men were armed, except with the mess knives carried by all the crew. I had the ship carpenter reinforce the door of our little armory, which was a rather flimsy affair, and put on new hinges. The powder I took the fortunate precaution of removing to a secret compartment under the floor of my own stateroom. Capt. Myers rather laughed at these proceedings, declaring that the suspected mutineers were cowardly fellows, who could only mutter and scowl at best and would never think of resorting to violence.

Possibly they might not, in this case, had it not been for an unpardonable indiscretion on the part of the second officer, which brought matters immediately to a crisis. In his zeal to keep an eye upon the movements of the malcontents and learn their plans, he overstepped the bounds of dignity and manliness, and was caught spying in the forecastle. He was ferociously set upon by the two Spaniards with their knives, and in order to defend himself was obliged to use his revolver, putting a ball through the shoulder of one of his assailants. The American sailors [illegible] the second officer safely out of the forecastle, but declared to Capt. Myers that they would not defend the man personally any further, as he had been guilty of conduct unworthy a seaman and an officer.

About two hours later I heard a crash in the vicinity of the armory, and hastened thither, only to find that the door of the armory had been broken in and the arms (such as I had not already secreted) taken away. The mutineers had found no powder, however, without which the guns, which were old-fashioned muskets, would be useless.

As soon as I made the discovery I summoned the men on deck. All responded except the two Spaniards and two Swedes, Jansen and Inbergston. I saw at once where the seat of the trouble lay, and resolved to act summarily and immediately. "As many of you as are ready to obey orders promptly and without question," I said, "may walk over to starboard." The American sailors promptly took their position on the starboard side of the ship. The Swedes, however, lingered. Thinking that I had not been understood by them, I requested one of their number who spoke English, to translate. He replied: "We understand well enough, but we are not ready to obey orders until Mr. Neal (the second officer) is hung from the yardarm."

"Very well, then," I said. "You may all go below until Captain Myers is ready to talk with you."

I then went to Capt. Myres, in the cabin, and told him what I had done. 'You have done just right," he said, "and we must deal with the fellows promptly. Call in four of the American sailors, men you can trust implicitly, and when you return bring five pair of irons." I did as commanded, and when the American sailors entered the cabin, respectfully removing their caps, Capt. Myers told them they were to stand by with the irons, and be ready to use them when ordered. He then sent word to the forecastle, where the mutineers had gathered, that he was ready to talk with their ringleader. The unwounded Spaniard, Henrique Gonzales, after a few moments' conference with his fellow countryman and the Swedes, came forward and signified his readiness to follow the messenger. We heard his heavy defiant footfall crossing the deck and descending the hatchway. Then the door opened and the swarthy malcontent stalked in, following the messenger. At sight of the four American sailors and the irons he started back as if to retreat, but found the door closed and locked behind him.

"Iron the man!" cried the captain, sternly. The Spaniard's knife flashed from its sheath. He aimed a blow at the foremost sailors who were advancing upon him, but a second sailor, passing swiftly behind the man, leaped upon him and pinned his arms to his sides. In another instant he was disarmed and ironed.

One by one the mutineers were called into the cabin, as if for conference, and as each man entered he was disarmed and ironed. It was the most quickly quelled mutiny I had ever heard of. Inside of fifteen minutes the entire number of rebellious sailors were bound and in the hold.

Then a fact transpired which showed how wise our summary action had been, whatever might have been charged against it on other grounds. Between the decks was found a complete layer of old sugar mats saturated with fish oil, ready to be set on fire in a moment should the contemplated assault of the mutineers prove ineffectual. It was evident that if they could not capture the ship they had determined to burn it and, if necessary, perish with it.—Brooklyn Times.

Easy to Take
And prompt to cure, Ayer's Pills act on the intestines, not by stimulating, but by strengthening them. They promote the natural peristaltic motion of the bowels, without which there can be no regular, healthy operations. For the cure of constipation, biliousness, jaundice, vertigo, sick headache, indigestion, sour stomach, and drowsiness,
Ayer's Pills
are unsurpassed. They are equally beneficial in rheumatism, neuralgia, colds, chills, and fevers. Being purely vegetable, delicately sugar-coated, and quickly dissolved, they are admirably adapted for household use, as well as for travelers by land or sea. Ayer's Pills are in greater demand, the world over, than any other pill, and are recommended by the most eminent physicians.

LIVES ON LACTATED FOOD

An Ohio Woman's Remarkable Experience.

"Only This Between Me and a Death of Starvation."

A Case That is Exciting Much Interest Among Physicians.

Columbus, O., June 22.—There is a great deal of interest among physicians in this section over the peculiar case of a woman residing in Monday, Hocking county, a little town a few miles from here.

Mrs. T. J. Wilson in May, 1890, had an attack of fever which left her unable to partake of the least article of solid food. For months she was confined to her bed, and lived on milk and hot water with a thin gruel made of brown flour. Existence in this way was kept up for a year, but she grew gradually weaker, for nothing in the way of food would agree with her debilitated stomach.

"In March, 1891," said Mrs. Wilson to your correspondent yesterday, "a friend told me of lactated food. I tried it and since then up to now it has been my sole food. I do not exaggerate in the least when I say it is the only thing between me and death by starvation. For I have tried all of the so-called invalid foods, but nothing agreed with me and gave me strength like lactated food. I have gained in strength ever since I commenced taking this food.

"Perhaps," continued Mrs. Wilson, growing enthusiastic, "some may doubt this statement, but I can give all the proof required that if I had not found lactated food I should have been in my grave ere this; at least, that is what the physicians tell me."

The physicians in Columbus recommend this food highly and agree in stating that it is the most readily digested and the most nourishing diet that can be given to those whose digestion is weak, whether they be infants or invalids, young or old.

Prohibition will never flourish in Texas long as the price of a glass of lemonade will buy two beers.

A little learning in a fool, like scanty powder in a large gun, will sometimes make considerable noise.

A Boston barber says a perfect temper in a razor is a happy incident. How like women razors must be.

A Dallas, Tex., juryman was fined $200 for stepping into a saloon without inviting the deputy sheriff and the other eleven jurymen.

The people of Chicago eat 300,000 pies every day, but don't come up to Boston yet in pie-eating. In Chicago pie takes the place of religion.

Learned men tell us that in Latin the word editor means "To eat." In United States it means to scratch around like blazes to get something to eat.

There is one thing in which all agree and about which there is no division of sentiment. Each and every party wants to stay in power as long as it can.

LOW RATES TO NEW YORK AND RETURN.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. will sell excursion tickets from Chicago to New York and return at the rate of $16.00 for the round trip for all through trains leaving Chicago July 5 to 7, inclusive. The tickets will be valid for return journey until August 15, and will be good for stop-over at Deer Park, the famous mountain resort on the summit of the Alleghanies, and also at Washington City. Tickets to New York and return via B. & O. R. R. will also be on sale at the offices of the principal roads throughout the west.

For full information as to time of trains and sleeping car accommodations apply to L. S. Allen, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agent, B. & O. R. R., The Rookery, Chicago.

JAPAN'S CENTENARIANS.

"It is commonly supposed that people live to a greater age in cold than in warm climates, but that, like many other generally received opinions, is an error," said E. T. Sampson, a Philadelphian, who has visited many lands, and is making his temporary home at the Lindell. "Population considered, semi-tropical Japan heads the list for centenarians. The southern states can show as many people in proportion to population who have passed the three-score-and-ten mile-post as can those of New England. The oldest man I ever saw had lived all his life in southern Arizona. He was popularly known as a greaser—one-third Spaniard, one-third Indian and the remainder coyote. He claimed to be 140 years old and could prove up to 132 years by the missionary records. He was totally blind, bent up like a jackknife and the color of leather. He was a pretty good fac-simile of the mummy of Rameses III. As I looked at him I thought of those unfortunate people described by Dean Swift as unable to die, and wondered if the flying island had not landed Gulliver in Arizona."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

HALF RATES TO SARATOGA, N. Y., VIA B. & O. R. R.

The Baltimore & Ohio R. R. will sell tickets to Saratoga Springs, New York, on the occasion of the meeting of the National Educational association, for one fare for the round trip. Tickets will be on sale July 5 to 7, inclusive, and will be valid to return until July 19, inclusive. All B. & O. vestibuled express trains, with Pullman sleeping cars, pass through Washington. For full information as to rates, time of trains, and sleeping car accommodations, apply to nearest B. & O. agent, or L. S. Allen, Ass't Gen. Pass. Agent, The Rookery, Chicago.

A FAMINE PREDICTED.

A ruddy-faced, stout-built man entered the Cadillac last night and registered as Dr. Engle, Fort Smith, Ark. He handed the clerk a cigar and opened the conversation with:

"Well, you've got a pretty deep river out here, but it's nothing compared with the river out in Arkansas."

Speaking seriously about the outlook in Arkansas, Dr. Engle said:

"Besides being adoctor, I am also somewhat of a farmer at Fort Smith, and everything out there is in bad shape—fearfully so. Last year where I had a wheat crop at this time well out there is now fully ten feet of water covering the ground and desolation reigns supreme.

"I think that the coming winter will be one of famine, and the Russian relief expedition will need to turn their attention to the west."—Detroit Tribune.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

One Who Wants Information.

To the Editor: I desire information relative to the fuss that's being made (for political purposes) about our Canadian neighbors discriminating against United States vessels.

I want to ask some of the leading lights (?) who favor protection, why they should blame Canadians for impeding the progress of ship building by our citizens when they have driven our commerce from the sea by what they misname protection? I would also like to have some of the same gentlemen of massive intellect inform me why the Canadian people are not as just in their position in discriminating against our shipping, in order to encourage their own people in building up a poor orphan industry, to the detriment of their own citizens as well as ours, as the so-called protectionists are in discriminating against the products of Canada to the injury of the citizens of the United States. Will some one give a good reason?

I will anticipate any insinuations that may be made relative to being more interested in Canada than this country by saying that I am a citizen by birth. My grandfather was also, and I manifested my loyalty to the United States by serving nearly four years in our late second struggle for independence. I intend, so long as I am permitted to serve in this our third struggle for emancipation from oppressive tariff and other laws that have made slaves of millions of men for whom Washington and his associates immolated their lives to free. Let us, above all things, be just with our neighbors on this and every other continent.

It is no wonder, however, that those who either wilfully or ignorantly are unjust to their own citizens, should forget to be just with others. A true patriot will never be admired less for dealing honestly with his enemies. Perhaps our present administration has embraced the doctrine subscribed to by the republican party in the last campaign, which was (according to an article in the North American Review during the campaign of '88), that "had it not been for the Mexican war, which gave employment to men and circulation to money, and the wars and rumors of wars in Europe, which created a demand for our breadstuffs, the tariff for revenue only would have bankrupted the United States." Is it any wonder that a party, or, if you please, people who take such a view of political economy do not hesitate to bring on complications that may end in war, would it not be more in keeping with a nation who professes to be actuated by the principles of the Nazarene, who, more than 1,800 years ago enjoined his followers to love their fellow men, to adjust matters so that their citizens will have other employment than that of robbing the wife of her husband, parents of their children, and sisters of their brothers by the shedding of blood in a bad cause? Do they want to know how to find remunerative employment for men who for want of an opportunity to become better citizens, are tramping up and down through this glorious republic looking for a way that will enable them to support a family, many of them without "where to rest their heads?" There are ordinary citizens, men who have never held a public office, by the thousand, who can suggest measures that, if followed, would soon make our people a truly free people; when it would be "heard in the proudest exclamation of man, I am an American." The battle will soon be on in earnest, and I trust that the party who considers "a public office a public trust" will be successful in this campaign. "The will o' the wisp" that many of our comrades have been following for so many years, has disappeared, and they are beginning to see other things better that were concealed from their view while following the delusions of our present political partisans.

I trust that some competent advocate of protection will reply in the right spirit to my question.

VETERAN AND FREE TRADER.

Information for Battery H Historian.

To the Editor: In last Saturday evening's Bee I notice the names of all the members of Battery H, First Ohio Light artillery. One name is omitted from the list—George A. Cassady. He was born in Toledo, and a job printer by trade. He is now living in Spokane Falls, Washington.

I also notice you mention that Edward McMahon is dead, but you do not say where he is buried. That his comrades may know where he is buried, I drop you this information. He is buried in St. Francis de Sales cemetery.

The number of the lot can be gotten from the books from the Rev. Dr. Patrick F. Quigley. Edward McMahon has two daughters living in Toledo. One is married and living, I think, on lower Erie or Ontario streets; the other one in East Toledo.

Michael Fitzgerald is a half brother of Edward McMahon. He is also buried in St. Francis de Sales cemetery. They were both printers, and were born in Toledo. At the time of their enlistment they held cases on the Toledo Commercial. After the war they both held cases on the Commercial until consumption compelled them to give up work. They both belonged to Toledo Typographical union No. 63. All the old Toledo printers knew them well. I hope the battery boys will be able to find their graves. They both died, I think, between 1866 and 1868, or 1869.

Hoping this may be the means of finding the lots that Edward McMahon and Michael Fitzgerald are buried in, is the reason I draw your attention to their names. EDWARD M. KEAN.

ONE FARE FOR THE ROUND TRIP

Cheap enough. The Michigan Central, "The Niagara Falls Route," will sell these tickets, July 5 to 7, good to return until July 15, with privilege of extension to August 15. By arrangements made with the New York Central, stop-over privileges will be allowed at Niagara Falls and at Albany, (to run over to Saratoga Springs, where the great educational meeting will be held) and at other points, and the option given of all rail or Hudson River Day Line steamers from Albany to New York.

It pays to travel over a first-class line. Do not forget that the utmost comfort, safety and convenience goes with a ticket over the Michigan Central. Its trains pass directly by and in full view of Niagara Falls, down the lovely Mohawk valley and the incomparable Hudson.

Tickets also sold to Saratoga Springs, July 5 to 13, at one fare for the round trip, with addition of $2.00 for membership fee. National Educational association, good to return until July 19, with privilege of extension to September 15. Stop-overs granted at Niagara Falls, Albany and other points. For fuller information apply to Wm. Gates, Ticket Agent, Boody House, or Union depot.

FOURTH OF JULY.

One Fare for the Round Trip.

On July 2, 3 and 4, the C., J. & M. railway will sell special low rate excursion tickets between all stations, including Cincinnati. Tickets good going day of sale and good returning up to and including July 5.

For full information apply to nearest C., J. & M. agent, or address,

A PUZZLING AFTERTHOUGHT.

Two years ago a Chicago drummer stopped at Decatur, Ala., and while sitting on the broad piazza talking with the proprietor of the hostelry, noticed a fine fighting cock strutting about the street.

"Pretty fine bird," remarked the Chicagoan, sententiously.

"Yep," replied the hotel keeper; "best in these parts, I reckon."

"I am something of a chicken fancier myself," continued the drummer.

"So? Glad to know it, sah."

"Tell you what I'll do—I'll play you a game of seven up for that rooster," said Chicago.

"Do it with pleasure, sah," replied his host.

The cards were produced and the drummer won. The rooster was turned over to him and was brought to the world's fair city.

A few days ago the Chicagoan again registered at the same hotel in Decatur. The proprietor immediately recognized him. "Arn't you the man who played me a game of cards two years ago for a rooster?" he asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Well, I've been thinking about you, sah, quite a powerful lot since that time. Do you know, sah, I've never been able to remember what you staked against my rooster, sah, on the occasion. That was the first real Yankee trick I ever experimented with, sah, and you will oblige me now by nominatin the sort of poison you prefer."—Chicago Mail.

whether in early girlhood or later on in adult years of the gentler sex is considered a dangerous and momentous period. Passed safely it means everything which is bright and beautiful, otherwise it may mean perpetual ailing, intense suffering, perhaps Death; now and then an Insane Asylum. EIGHT ($8) DOLLARS

For Eight Dollars we will make you the best set of teeth that can be made on rubber, no better made no matter how much you pay.

And remember we are the only dentists in the city that make our own Vitalized Air and Gas, which makes it purer and safer, and while is acknowledged by all to be the only true and genuine anæsthetic for the Painless Extraction of Teeth, and especially is this the case with children, and if once taken by them they will never have teeth out any other way. Crown and bridge work cheaper than ever.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Currents for Produce and Other Articles.

The receipts of wheat to-day at Minneapolis and Duluth are 280,983 bus., and at five other western points 186,384 bus. The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were wheat 220,635 bus. and flour to an aggregate of 280,000 bus. Export of corn, 121,106 bus. and of oats 12,220 bus.

London wheat market opens firmer and a shade higher for wheat. Corn steady. Liverpool opened dull for wheat and firm for corn.

This part of the wheat belt was visited last night with a tremendous rain and wind storm. We don't like it. Neither do we like the looks of the weather map. It looks wet and we have had wet enough on the wheat, and far too much to permit of a corn crop being planted. Wheat is approaching harvest. The heads are becoming heavy and rain and wind easily break it down.

On the whole, prices of wheat have ruled lower to-day than yesterday. There are no new bear influences, but corn has broken off, and doubtless has affected wheat. The fluctuations have been narrow, and the closing but little below yesterday.

Corn moved up in price after opening, but failed to respond to free offerings and declined, closing below yesterday.

In New York June wheat closed unchanged. July 1-4c lower. June and July corn, 1c lower.

In Chicago July wheat closed 1-2c lower. June corn unchanged. July sold up to 51c, and closed at 49 5-8c, a loss of 7-8c.

In Toledo the trading has been light, and without much change in prices, and no change in the situation.

On the call July sold at 82 7-8c, and August at 81 3-4c. After the call June sold at 86 3-8c and closed at 85 3-4c, a loss of 1-2c. July sold at 82 3-4c to 83c, and closed at 82 5-8c bid, a loss of 1-4c. August sold at 81 3-4c and closed at 5-8c, a loss of 1-4c. September sold at 81 7-8c.

Cash wheat.—Sales were light, closing 1-2c lower. No. 2 soft sold at 86c to 85 3-4c.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. R. Billinghurst is dangerously ill.

Mrs. James Secor entertains this evening.

Miss Quinn has returned from a short visit with Detroit friends.

Mr. J. Todd, of Huron street, will spend the summer at Put-in-Bay.

Misses Lizzie and Mamie King leave today for a summer outing at Charlevoix, Mich.

Miss Anna Berdan gives a dinner party to-morrow evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Waite.

The ladies of St. Joseph's church will give an ice cream festival at Memorial hall, Friday evening.

Mrs. Maurice Scott gave a drag party last evening to a number of friends which was an enjoyable affair.

Miss Lois Van Brunt, of Silver Creek, N. Y., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Bertha Van Brunt at 312 Michigan street.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll J. Webster have returned from their wedding tour, and are residing at the Webster home on Bush street.

Mrs. Maud Wilson, of Kendallville, Ind., is in the city, the guest of Miss Carrie Beatty. Mrs. Wilson came to attend the High school commencement.

Miss Minnie Marker will spend the summer in the east visiting friends in New York city and Albany. She will take a trip up the Hudson before returning.

Mrs. A. E. Dewey, Mrs. L. C. Laylin and children went to Toledo yesterday to visit Mrs. S. H. Waring. Mrs. George Baker and Mrs. William Baker, of Toledo, are visiting in the city, guests of Mrs. M. A. Corwin and family.—Norwalk Reflector.

Last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Morgan occurred the marriage of their daughter, Miss Henrietta Morgan, to Mr. John Bennet. Rev. S. G. Jennings tied the nuptial knot and the bride's sister, Miss Clara Morgan, and brother, Walter Morgan, were attendants. The wedding was a quiet but very pretty one. Mr. and Mrs. Bennet will reside on Twelfth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Maher start tomorrow morning for a summer's sojourn on the tip end of Cape Cod, a quaint and peculiar part of the New England coast. Miss Annie Hope Maher, who has been at school at Saratoga the past year, is visiting relatives in Connecticut, where her parents will join her, and then hie themselves to the shores of the Atlantic, where fish chowder is the staple diet and Paris fashions are unknown.

The C. C. C.'s of Auburndale made a very merry party on board the steamer Pastime yesterday afternoon on the 5:30 trip to Presque Isle. At 6:30 light refreshments were served and the occasion was a jolly one. Among those who participated were the Misses Hattie and Emma Gasser, Lida Hough, Emily and Caroline Hughes, Ella Johnson, Irene Shaeffer, Minnie Hales, Maud Wood, Estella Alexander and Mrs. Fred Quine.

CHOICE OF THE MASSES.

MADE IT UNANIMOUS.

New York Comes Nobly to the Front—Democratic Scenes.

Chicago, June 23.—Grover Cleveland was nominated for president at 3:19 this morning.

His nomination was reached on the first ballot, in which he made heavy gains over the published estimates of his managers, which had given him a safe two-thirds.

The nomination was accomplished after the most picturesque convention in recent political history.

After sitting ten hours, filled with driving work, the convention settled down to a vote.

It was faced by both sides with resolution.

There was no quailing.

The opposition made few attempts to check the work of the night. One or two motions for adjournment were made, but these were caused not by a desire to postpone action, but by the turbulence of the galleries, which fairly overwhelmed the gathering and robbed the chairman of all authority.

The ballot begun amid the most intense excitement in the galleries, which were still crowded with anxious spectators of the great battle.

It was apparent before ten states had been called that the printed estimates of Cleveland's strength rather undershot the truth, and that the ex-president's following would overwhelm opposition.

Unexpected gains developed as the roll call proceeded. Before the middle of the call was reached Cleveland was thirty votes ahead of the estimate, giving him 606.

He lost some after that through the lapse of Maryland and Ohio, but when the last state was called he had 616 votes, enough to nominate him and to spare.

The nomination was received with wild cheering. The jaded crowd that had sat in the wigwam for ten hours, rose to the chairs and cheered madly when the announcement was made.

The news was carried to the streets and the cheers of the crowds that had remained down town to hear what the convention would do rolled back to the multitude in the hall. The total was: Cleveland, 616 2-3; Hill, 114; Boies, 95; Gorman, 36 1-2; Morrison, 2; Campbell, 2; Carlisle, 14; Stevenson, 16 2-3; Whitney, 1.

The deciding vote was cast by New Mexico, and that territory, by casting the entire vote to Cleveland, made possible the renomination of the ex-president. Th vote in detail:

It was the most remarkable session known in the history of national conventions. From 5 o'clock in the afternoon until the gray of dawn this morning the huge wigwam was a scene of tumultuous demonstrations.

Each side was willing to fight, and the repeated attempts to secure an adjournment were howled down.

New York made a desperate and almost pitiable appeal at the last hour, asking the states to nominate anyone but Cleveland. This had its effect, as shown in the wavering votes during the early states, but the Cleveland forces rallied under the able direction of their leaders.

The final scene was very dramatic.

The last state on the roll call—Wyoming—had been called and Cleveland still lacked two votes. There was a moment of breathless suspense as roll calls were compared. Then the secretary went back to several minor states and territories which had been omitted on the first roll call.

"Arizona," he called.

"Five votes for Cleveland," came the answer.

Fifteen thousand people sprang to their feet and echoed and re-echoed a mighty shout. Above the din would be faintly heard the voice of the secretary vainly endeavoring to gain the attention of the convention to the remaining territories.

Delegates rushed across the floor and showered congratulations on the heroes of the evening.

Don M. Dickinson was surrounded by a jam of friends.

William C. Whitney sat back in his chair on the platform, and except for a smile did not betray the feeling that must have surged within him.

Gov. Abbett was lost with the crowd that thronged about him.

Chairman Wilson hammered the desk with his gavel, but he was not heard. And the little band of New Yorkers that had so valiantly supported their candidate sat in their chairs and listened stolidly to the tumult of deafening shouts that started and swelled and sunk, to begin again, louder and more tremendous than before.

Bourke Cockran, still tired from his long speech, only sank farther back in his seat.

An Ohio delegate was the first to secure recognition. He pleaded for unity and moved that the nomination be made by acclamation.

Senator Daniel took the platform and eloquently seconded the motion.

"Every true democrat will second it," he said, as he closed.

There were cries for New York, and for Flower, and Cockran. The latter finally climbed upon his chair. He held his hand to his forehead, as though it were splitting. His little was heard further than the last ting. He spoke in a low tone, so that sentence:

"New York has bowed to the will of the convention and will vote in the affirmative on the motion to make the nomination unanimous."

The motion was put and there was not a dissenting voice.

COMMENT.

What the Press of the Country Think of the Nomination.

St. Louis, June 23.—The Republic (dem.) says: "The nomination of Grover Cleveland means victory for democracy against radicalism. At such a crisis as this, when the country is threatened by a faction intrenched in power, with the thousands of federal office-holders under its control acting as its unscrupulous agents in politics and reinforced by millions of money contributed by a plutocratic class desperately bent on perpetuating its supremacy, and willing to go to any length in the attempt to retain its hold on government, the leader needed for the people is one whose honesty all know; whose sincerity all can trust; whose courage has been demonstrated in victory with the people as in defeat for their cause."

The Globe-Democrat (rep.) says: "Although Cleveland is unquestionably and emphatically the strongest man in his party, his chances for success at the polls appear to us to be hopeless. He cannot carry New York, and it has been freely considered by the magnates of his party all along that without that state the democrats cannot gain the presidency."

St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., June 23.—The Globe says: "Cleveland's triumph is due to many causes, not the least powerful of which was the personal influence of W. C. Whitney. Mr. Cleveland, himself, however, is the architect of his own victory. The democracy would have been false to itself and false to its platform had it turned its back on Cleveland and preferred another."

The Pioneer Press says: "The Chicago convention is a convention of ex-officeholders. The men who have asked and received no favors from Cleveland, men like the New York delegation, men like Henry Watterson, opposed Cleveland with all the earnestness and conviction of which they were capable."

The Dispatch will say: "The democratic party has now presented its candidate and its platform to the people. They are worthy of each other. Neither stands for aught more that opposition to the republican party. Both represent the shifting sand of political expediency. Had the task of drawing the platform devolved upon the candidates it could not have embodied more platitude. Had the candidate been selected with especial reference to his fitness to stand upon such a platform, the choice could not have been more appropriately made."

Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., June 23.—The Leader (rep.) says, with regard to Cleveland's nomination: "In the nomination of Grover Cleveland for president the democratic party has prepared the way for a repetition of the campaign of 1888. The issues are the same as they were four years ago. Mr. Cleveland stands before the public on his utterances during the last national campaign and the sentiments contained in his messages, letter of acceptance and other documents, rather than upon the long and verbose platform adopted at Chicago. * * * He won his nomination easily. Whether he can be elected or not is quite a different matter. The most prominent papers of the country have predicted his defeat. The most influential democratic workers of New York say he cannot carry that state. The Leader cordially agrees with them, and we confidently expect to see Benjamin Harrison re-elected next November to the office which he has filled with such distinguished ability."

Cleveland, June 23.—The Press (independent) says: "Cleveland has been tried in the high place for which he is again nominated. It ought to be a comfort to all citizens to be conscious that his critics, both within and without his own party, have never yet dared to question his integrity or his patriotism. Such nominations, by any party, should be gratifying to all who are not wholly party blind or party mad."

Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, June 23.—The Minneapolis Tribune (rep.) says: "Cleveland has many strong friends but his enemies are bitter and unreconciliable, and while his nomination will occasion more enthusiasm than that of any other man in the democratic party, it is extremely doubtful whether a weaker candidate at the polls could have been selected."

New York World.

New York, June 23.—The World says: "The democracy of the nation has displayed the courage of its convictions.

"It wanted Grover Cleveland as its leader and it has placed its standard in his hand.

"That the convention was obliged to do this against the protest of the New York delegation is unfortunate. But it was unavoidable, unless forty states were to give way to one. The democracy of the rest of the country did not accept the dictated decree of the midwinter convention as the full, free and final expression of the democrats of New York. And in this it was right. Snap judgment can never be accepted as conclusive.

"The World has recently stated its reasons for thinking Mr. Cleveland the strongest candidate that could have been selected. These reasons need not be here repeated.

The only objection brought against his nomination was that he could not carry New York.

"It is a libel on the Empire state. If it were true that it would show that New York does not value rugged honesty, a high conception of public office, unswerving devotion to duty and uncompromising fidelity to the principles of democracy.

"If it were true it would prove that a large number of democrats are ruled by prejudice rather than principle—then they care more for their preferences than for their party.

"The World believes that the qualities which have impelled and compelled the nomination of Grover Cleveland are qualities which New York respects not less than her sister states, and that the preferences of her delegation for another candidate will, when the flush of their disappointment has passed, be succeeded by a loyal support of the nominee of the convention. We believe this because we know they are democrats."

Boston.

Boston, June 23.—This morning's Herald says editorially that Cleveland's was as spontaneous a nomination as any since the second choice of Lincoln. It is emphatically a people's nomination. Cleveland is more than the democratic candidate. He has a hold upon the American people generally who desire a strong, able, conscientious and patriotic president.

He represents character, dignity, strength and principle.

No man has been more fearless than he in the avowal of conviction or more steadfast in maintaining his views upon public questions.

His course on the currency has been courageous, effective and useful. His name is a tower of strength against danger to business interests by wrong legislation.

He is identified with the tariff reform movement and is a staunch supporter of a pure, honest and economical administrator of government.

It would be treason to the American people at this stage of the contest to doubt their support of a candidate thus equipped in character and statesmanship.

Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 23.—The Courier this morning says: "The Chicago convention has met the expectations of the democratic party and of the country by making Grover Cleveland its candidate for president.

"The nomination was made under peculiar circumstances—the most peculiar that have ever occurred in connection with the presidential nomination.

"The agencies of organization and machinery in his own state had been turned against him, but the popular call, the admiration and affection of 'the plain people,' a public demand that would not be denied, overbore all the accustomed political agencies and made the people's will the politicians' law.

"We do not say that Mr. Cleveland will carry New York; we do not say that he will be elected. But the Courier does say, with all the earnestness of profound conviction, that if Mr. Cleveland cannot gain these triumphs, then no democratic candidate could have done so."

Albany Argus.

Albany, June 23.—The Argus (Mr. Manning's paper), says: "The strongest party with the strongest principles and purposes offers for the suffrages of the American people the strongest personality in American public life. The national democratic convention has nominated Grover Cleveland for the presidency. Grover Cleveland stands before the country as the type of the ruggedly honest man in public life. With the leader embodying the issue the democracy the bodying the issue the democracy is invincible."

The Press and Knickerbocker (independent) says: "Mr. Cleveland's strength in the convention has amazed and confounded his opponents. Mr. Cleveland is still the strongest democrat before the country to-day. His one positive quality, his integrity, and his single desire to do what is right and for the best interests of the people, outweigh the glittering pretensions of all his rivals combined."

A MARCH TO VICTORY.

Grover Cleveland Says There Is Nothing to Divide Democracy.

Buzzard's Bay, Mass., June 23.—A United Press reporter was the first to convey the news to the Cleveland household. None had yet retired. Mr. Cleveland and his guests were all awaiting news from the convention. The ex-president was heartily congratulated on all sides upon the result. Gov. Russell expressed his delight and predicted that the democrats with such a standard bearer were assured of a glorious victory at the polls.

Mr. Cleveland said he was deeply touched by this last mark of esteem from his party. He felt confident, he declared, that his fellow countrymen stood ready to place the mark of approval on true democracy and persistency in the advocacy of these principles was all that was necessary to succeed. He did not think that differences in democratic conventions were at all hurtful, but in view of the importance of a democratic success he could not conceive any reason for lack of harmony or united and active efforts to win in the coming campaign.

TARIFF FOR REVENUE.

Larry Neal Scored a Great Victory for the Cause of Democracy.

Chicago, Ill., June 23.—(Special)—Slow and deliberate in the beginning of the convention the delegates rounded up a ten-hour night session with a hurrah like a county fair, and nominated a candidate for president before morning.

The convention re-assembled at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon after a recess of only three hours and then kept up a running fire that at times was dramatic and brilliant until half past three this morning.

The platform committee presented a document longer that the Moral law, covering a multitude of questions sufficient for half a dozen political parties.

The report was made by that polished editorial writer, Col. Jones, of the St. Louis Republic, and was read by that handsome man with a voice like a bull, Senator Vilas, of Wisconsin.

There were times during the reading of the monstrous long document that old democrats strained their ears in wonderment, fearing they were not hearing correctly.

Especially did the tariff plank have a strange sound in a democratic convention, and men asked themselves if these distinguished democratic committeemen could have written and adopted such language when sane or sober.

At length, fully an hour and a half after Col. Vilas' ponderous voice echoed to the uttermost corners of the wigwam store box and reverberated around the ampitheater circle of thousands of listeners, the noise ceased.

The last page had been read and the convention drew a sigh of relief and wondered what next.

They speedily discovered what next.

There was one of the faithful committeemen who in the evolvement of the platform had not forgotten that she was a democrat, and that the democratic party does not propose to take one backward step in the fight for tariff reform.

The tariff plank submitted to the convention by the committee might well have been adopted by the convention over which Gov. Mc. Kinley presided in Minneapolis.

It was an apology for the protective tariff of the republican party and was an excuse for every crime upon the taxpayer committed in the name of American protection.

It was an encouragement of extortion and put a lie upon the famous declaration of Grover Cleveland that unequal taxation is unjust taxation.

Never before in a national democratic convention had such heresy been offered for democratic adoption.

The amazement that Col. Jones, who poses as an advanced and polished democratic writer upon the tariff, should report and defend such heresy dumbfounded the listeners to the reading of the remarkable document.

To the shame of the committee it must be written that only one member had the democratic heroism and good sense to carry his democratic protest to the convention.

To the gratification and honor of Ohio democracy it is of record that a distinguished Buckeye democrat made the protest and won a most glorious victory.

It was Lawrence T. Neal, the man who wrote the tariff plank of the national democratic platform four years ago and who went upon the committee this year with the openly avowed determination to have "a tariff for revenue only" plank, or have a fight.

He had both, and won both, and his fame as a wise, fearless, and successful champion of tariff reform is established before the whole country.

The apologists of the high taxers were routed, though Col. Vilas came to their relief.

Mr. Neal's substitute is clear cut, short and unequivocal. Its language can not be mistaken. It means something and is democratic. Larry made a splendid speech and was ably seconded by that prince of tariff reformers, Henry Watterson of Kentucky.

The roll of states was called upon, striking out Col. Jones' monstrosity and substituting Mr. Neal's democracy, and by a decisive vote Neal and democracy won.

It was a magnificent battle of words, the first sharp fight of the convention, and was watched with intense interest by 20,000 people.

When it was over the spectators and the delegates expected that an adjournment would be taken until this morning, but before the convention could catch its second wind the chairman stated that the announcement of candidates for president was in order.

The roll of states was ordered and quickly begun, and the great contest of the convention was under way.

For six hours it lasted. The powers of oratory were exhausted on both sides. The anything-to-beat Cleveland crowds made the most of the situation, and their labors were worthy a better cause.

Cleveland won on the first ballot just as the dispatches to the Bee indicated.

His nomination came from the people. It was national in character, more than two-thirds of all the delegates voting for the ablest president of modern years.

The work of the convention practically closed at 3:30 this morning. The selection of a vice-president was agreed upon several days ago.

It was a great convention in numbers, enthusiasm and purposes.

The campaign of education is resumed, and the people will again make choice between Cleveland and Harrison.

IT WILL BE GRAY.

The Convention Very Slow in Coming to Order.

Chicago, June 23.—2:45 p. m.—The convention is slow in coming to order, but there seems to be no doubt that Isaac P. Gray, of Indiana, will be nominated for vice-president.

PARISIAN SOCIETY NOTE.

Monsieur de Blank had for years lived on the most intimate terms with a certain disreputable lady. One day he hurled himself into her boudoir, and in a voice fistorted with rage, exclaimed:

"Madame, I have just heard that you have been disgracefully intimate with Count Soandso. I hereby dissolve the tender relations that have heretofore existed between us."

Madame disdainfully turned her back on him. He went out into the street. All at once she was seized with a sudden frenzy. She grasped a revolver and rushed down stairs after him, for she suspected that the object of getting rid of her was to spend more time in the company of a siren belonging to the opera.

Monsieur de Blank stepped out into the street with a light heart, but what was it that caused his hair to stand on end? Only a few yards distant was the opera singer with a revolver poised in the air ready to shoot.

"Vile wretch!" she exclaimed drawing a bead on him. "Have I caught you in the house of your former mistress? Die!" and she blazed away, but she immediately sank on the pavement mortally wounded by a bullet.

It seems that the discarded mistress, coming up behind him, had fired at Monsier de Blank simultaneously with the shot fired from the opera singer. Just at this crisis Monsieur de Blank stooped down to pick up his handkerchief and escaped both shots, which buried themselves in the bodies of the rivals, who lay sweltering in their blood, dead.

After casually examining the dead bodies, Monsieur de Blank lit a fresh cigar and walked off, remarking to himself:

"I must tell my dear Fanny, who lives on the next street, all about this little episode. How it will amuse her!"—Texas Siftings.

One of the "finds" frequently made in old curiosity shops on the Continent, and particularly in Paris, is the cross of the Mexican order created by the ill-fated Maximillian. As for the insignia of Isabella the Catholic, that decoration and the military orders created by her father Queen Isabella bestowed so generously that many unworthy people had them, and the lavish bestowed of them suggested the liberetto of "La Grande Duchesse."

There is a curious looking animal in South Africa that looks for all the world like a piece of toast with four legs, a head, and a tail. It resembles a pussy cat about the forehead and ears, but its nose is distinctly that of a rat, while its tail is not very dissimilar to that of a fox. This strange animal is called the aardwolf, and doubtless dwells in South Africa because, judged by his looks, he would not be admitted into good animal society anywhere else.

Sunshine is recorded at the Meteorological Office in England by means of the Stokes-Campbell instrument, the essential feature of which is a spherical lens, which acts as a burning glass. As the sun accomplishes its apparent journey from east and west it burns its autograph into a strip of card placed beneath the lens, but can only do so when it is unobscured. As the card is divided into hours, it is easy to calculate the amount of actual sunshine with which each day is favored.
